The Ghosts May Wonder
California for Garner
Russia Turns Jingo
Mr. Ecker's Advertising

—By Arthur Brisbane—

SHANGHAI SENDS WORD that China and Japan will end the war out there with an armistice at 10 o'clock this morning. American, British, French and Italian representatives will sign the peace documents. Japanese soldiers will be withdrawn.

The ghosts of thousands of Chinese women, children and civilians, and of Chinese and Japanese soldiers, will wonder, perhaps, why it was necessary to kill them.

Speaker Garner seems to have won the California primaries, defeating Governor Roosevelt and former Governor Smith.

This does not surprise those who know that the five powerful newspapers owned by W. R. Hearst in California have all supported Mr. Garner.

If Mr. Garner were President you would see in the White House one who knows about simple living. When he was a boy in Texas, the bright evenings were those following the slaughter of an ox. While the fat lasted the family had good candles, by which you could read if you held your book close. When there was no more steer fat, the light available was bad and reading was painful.

Not satisfied with the worries of her 10-year plan, Russia talks about what she would do if war came. Blucher, Eastern commander of the Red army, says Russia likes peace, but is ready for a fight.

The "oath of fidelity" has been administered to the Russian soldiers as "an iron call to strength and to fight."

Talking to any European government about war now is like talking to a seasick passenger about pork in mid-ocean, but Russia's talk at present is intended for Japan.

The Japanese, very intelligent, probably will not be misled into imagining that they could do to modern Russia what they did under the incompetent rule of the Czars.

Mr. Frederick Ecker's Metropolitan Life announces among its industrial policy holders the lowest death rate in all history. This, undoubtedly, is due largely to the fact that Mr. Ecker's company carries on through public advertising a systematic health campaign, giving information for health protection in simple language, and warnings against dangers that increase the death rate.

This campaign of health education, protecting the Metropolitan Company's policy holders and its own funds, is admirable.

Capone, extraordinary product of prohibition—bootlegging, his spirit not broken, handcuffed to another criminal, struts to the train bound for Atlanta prison. He tells reporters, "I am through with the racket," but his mind will be on it in prison. He will endeavor to control his "mob" from his cell, relying upon a few faithful to terrify others into loyalty.

Charles the Fifth, it is said, continued to manage his empire after he had resigned the throne and entered a monastery. But a monastery is not a federal penitentiary and gangsters lose respect for a leader who is "put away."

On the desert you may see the deadly poisonous female scorpion wandering, with her young ones clinging to her back. While slowly devouring their mother's body, leaving only an empty shell, they occasionally drop off, return and climb on again.

The female scorpion is the forerunner of the giant dirigible Akron. That great ship, which would prove very poisonous" in war, sails around carrying small flying machines called "Spider" planes, stowed away in a hangar inside the ship.

On Tuesday Lieuts. Harrigan and Young flew from the mother ship in these little planes and flew back again, "hooked on" and repeated the operation 15 times.

Such a dirigible, carrying a group of "Spider" bombing planes within striking distance of an enemy city, might make itself disagreeable.

Rep. Rainey of Illinois says the government will NOT print money to pay the soldiers' bonus, and all organized finance, badly frightened just now but still influential, says the same.

Probably the soldiers won't get their bonus, but you cannot help thinking of these things.

The soldiers alone could have distributed that money immediately in every corner of the United States. There is no other way of accomplishing that, no other way to start buying all over the country.

The government owes two billions to the soldiers, will have to pay it some day with interest at 4 per cent.

By printing the money and letting the soldiers have it when they need it most, the government would save eighty million dollars a year in interest.

ORDER MASSIE BACK TO SAN FRANCISCO

Other Two Naval Men Freed of "Honor Slaying" Still Await Orders

Washington, May 5 (AP)—The Navy Department, on the recommendation of Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of the Hawaiian naval district, today ordered Lieut. Thomas H. Massie to duty in the San Francisco naval district.

A recommendation was awaited regarding the transfer of the two enlisted men, A. O. Jones and Edward J. Lord, also convicted in the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai.

Sec. Adams told newspapermen today the Navy would not institute disciplinary action against the naval personnel involved in the case and that in view of the absence of any action by the Navy, President Hoover would not be called upon to consider whether Lieut. Massie should be dismissed from the service.

Meanwhile, the House judiciary committee indefinitely postponed action on the bills to grant pardons to those convicted in the slaying.

The committee also took no action on the Bigham bill to prevent two hung juries in Hawaii from operating to acquit defendants.

Full "Honor" Pardon Fight Gains Impetus

Honolulu, May 5 (INS)—A movement to wipe away the last vestige of stigma that might legally attach itself to the names of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, gained momentum today.

Despite the fact that the four "honor slayers" received commutation of their 10-year manslaughter sentences in a fashion that virtually amounted to a pardon since none of their mainland rights have been lost, new pressure was brought to bear on Governor Lawrence Judd to grant full pardons.

Private citizens, as well as civic organizations joined in the demand to remove the legal blame for the killing of Joseph Kahahawai.

Meanwhile, it appeared unlikely that the four men accused with Kahahawai of the attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie that precipitated the tragedy would be taken back into court.

2 BLAZES TAX BROOKLINE FIREMEN

Simultaneous Fires Call Out All Apparatus, Snarl Traffic and Cause $8500 Loss

Two fires, discovered within three minutes of each other in different sections of Brookline, called all available fire apparatus and firemen into action this afternoon and resulted in losses estimated at $8500.

The more serious fire was in the home of Robert M. Cooms, 123 Sewall ave., one of the most exclusive streets in the town.

The second blaze was at 848 Commonwealth ave., a recently condemned and partially razed two-story brick building, that had formerly been a garage.

FLAMES SPREAD

The fire in the Cooms home started on the second floor and before it was discovered by a maid had worked its way into the attic and through the roof.

The flames leaped 20 feet into the air and the high wind carried burning embers for more than a half mile, dropping them close to several other homes in the vicinity.

For a time it was feared the blaze would spread to neighboring houses. The loss was estimated at $7500. Officials were unable to determine the cause.

The Commonwealth ave. fire started in a rubbish pile in the rear of the building and was not discovered until it had worked inside the building and up through the second floor. Damage was estimated at $1000.

TRAFFIC IS HALTED

While firemen fought this blaze all intown auto and street car traffic along Commonwealth ave. was tied up for more than an hour and extra details of Brookline and Boston police were called to reroute traffic and straighten out the tangle.

2000 Army Officers to Go; Devens Is Doomed

Washington, May 5 (AP)—Slashed by many millions under President Hoover's budget estimates, the last of the big regular supply bills for 1933—that for the War Department—was reported to the House today by its apropriation committee.

Cutting 2000 officers off the active list and making other sweeping reductions, the measure carries $386,982,000 for maintenance of the Army and its non-military activities. It is $58,789,000 below current appropriations and $24,380,000 less than budget estimates.

Besides cutting from 12,000 to 10,000 the number of officers, the bill proposes suspension of camps for reserve officers training; suspension of citizens military training camps; suspension of 14-day training pay for organized reserves; a $5,555,000 curtailment of transportation of troops and officers; a $3,219,000 reduction in subsistence allowances, and reduction in flying pay totaling $112,500.

This would include Camp Devens, at Ayer, Mass.

The reduction brings to $160,000,000 the amount deducted by the Democratic-controlled committee from President Hoover's requests for funds for the maintenance of the federal government in 1933. Only the second deficiency appropriation bill remains to be presented before Congress adjourns.

Not one budget estimate was increased and no item not recommended by President Hoover was included.

RUM-RUNNERS PAY BIG FINES

Victor and Henry Blackwood, New Bedford brothers, were fined $300 each in federal court today after they pleaded guilty to running rum aboard the schooner Evelyn and Ruth when it was captured in Dorchester Bay two years ago.

Suspended sentences of a year and a day were pronounced against the brothers also, and Albert Durrill, another member of the crew.

Louis W. Blumenthal of Nazing ct., Roxbury, forfeiteed his automobile and paid a fine of $100 for transporting one quart of liquor two weeks ago.

William J. Shanahan of Lowell was sentenced to a year and a day in Worcester jail for violation of probation on a liquor case.

KIDNAPERS IN WARNINGS TO PROSECUTOR

Police Rush to West Roxbury Home at 2 A. M. to Protect State Attorney's Children

Death threats to Asst.-Dist.-Atty. Frederick T. Doyle of Suffolk County, coupled with threats to kidnap or harm his children, caused police to place guards over his home and family today.

Doyle has several children and those of school age were accompanied to and from school by a police officer.

As an assistant to Dist.-Atty. Foley, Doyle has prosecuted most of the important criminal cases in Boston in the last few years.

The threats were made to him in repeated telephone calls to his office and to his home in Danville st., West Roxbury.

Numerous calls were made last evening, after which there was a halt of a few hours. Shortly after 1 a. m., the calls started again. At 2 o'clock Doyle asked the telephone company to stop ringing his number. Soon afterward he decided to call the police to make a complaint but could not get the operator.

WITHOUT TELEPHONE

Fearing his wires had been cut and that immediate harm threatened his family, he went to the door and called George Owens, a milkman whom he sent to the West Roxbury police station.

Police Lieut. Philip O'Neill and Patrolmen Brickley, Swanson and Bradley went to the house and after a thorough search of the surroundings, Brickley was left on guard.

It was found that the wires had not been cut but that the telephone company had made the mistake of plugging the line so Doyle, despite his danger, was entirely cut off from communication.

DORCHESTER THREAT

Doyle refused to make any statement about the threats, other than his report to the police. The latter said the calls were chiefly from the Columbia exchange in Dorchester.

Police are endeavoring to ascertain if the threats had any connection with Doyle's opposition to a roadhouse which was recently granted a permit to open in West Roxbury.

His opposition was voiced before the licensing board at a hearing on another matter. Doyle, with Rev. William A. Lyons, pastor of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, and City Councillor Joseph Cox, criticized the board for issuing the permit.

An individual whose name figured in the Garrett hearings may be questioned, the police admitted.

CONGRESSMEN DEMAND FULL PARDONS FOR FOUR

THINK STIGMA OUGHT TO BE REMOVED

Only Dissenter Is Sen. Reed of Penn., Who Fears Judd's Action Will Spell Trouble

Washington, May 5 (AP)—Insistent demands that full pardons be granted Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and his co-defendants in the Honolulu killing rose up in Congress at news that Gov. Judd had commuted their sentences.

While generally relieved that the four Americans had not been subjected to imprisonment, many senators and representatives showed by comments they felt the stigma of conviction and the consequent loss of citizenship rights should be lifted immediately.

A few dissented, some were satisfied as matters stood, but attempts for legislation to give President Hoover pardoning power were pushed.

REMOVE STIGMA

"It shows a spirit over there that is taking care of the situation," said Sen. Logan (D., Ky.), who wants a presidential pardon.

"If they are going to do anything, they ought to grant a full pardon," said Rep. Thatcher (R., Ky.), sponsor of a petition for pardon sent Gov. Judd.

"The stigma that attaches to that sentence ought to be removed," was the comment of Senator McKellar (D.) of Tennessee.

"I think a pardon is due," came from Senator Bingham (R.) of Connecticut.

REED DISAGREES

"The news is great," responded Representative Crisp (D.) of Georgia.

"The one-hour sentence should be completely annulled by President Hoover," said Britten (R.) of Illinois.

But an entirely different reaction came from Senator Reed (R.) of Pennsylvania. "I think Governor Judd has made a very serious mistake which will turn up to plague the future administration of justice in Hawaii."

Mrs. Fortescue Done With Hawaii

Honolulu, May 5 (INS)—Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortesque never wants to see Hawaii again, she said today.

"When I leave here I never want to come back as long as I live," she asserted.

"While naturally I am overjoyed at Gov. Judd's action, yet these islands will always hold for me the bitterest of memories.

"I will never be able to blot out all the terrible things that happened in these few short months. But, oh, how I wish I could!"

Fortescue and Wife's Mother Are Overjoyed

Chicago, May 5 (AP)—The father of Mrs. Thalia Massie and the mother of Mrs. Granville Fortescue were speeding back East today, jubilant oveh the order commuting the sentences of the four principals in the Massie-Fostescue manslaughter case.

News of the commutation reached Maj. Granville R. Fortescue and Mrs. Grace Bell as they arrived here en route to Honolulu. They immediately decided to return East instead of going on to Hawaii.

"This case shows that justice has a humane as well as legal side," said Maj. Fortescue. "I am very proud of Lieut. Massie as a son-in-law. I believe the Navy is proud of him, and so I believe are the people of America."

Mrs. Bell, his mother-in-law, who nearly collapsed, said it was "simply superb."

Massie's Home Town Stages Big Demonstration

Winchester, Ky., May 5 (AP)—The mother of Lieut. Thomas Massie, "overjoyed" that her son is at last free, today received messages of congratulations from every state in the Union.

When the announcement of the release was received here last night, several hundred persons joined in a demonstration, while Mrs. Massie and her daughter Dorothy watched.

A high school band led a parade of automobiles and marchers, many of the latter carrying torches. Whistles and bells sounded a salute, and church prayer meeting services were converted into thanksgivings for the restored liberty of the Americans.

Mothers Voice Plea for Missing Boys

Two Roxbury mothers asked the Boston Evening American today to send messages to their runaway sons that poor school report cards mean nothing to them if the boys come back.

Edward Forrest of Parker st. and Walter Brennan of Faxon st., both Roxbury, disappeared on the way home from Comins School because they feared to show their report cards at home. Both are 14.

Boston Cheers Massie Action But Wants Full Pardon

The commutation of sentence granted by Gov. Judd in the case of the Honolulu "honor slayers" made Bostonians happy, but they went on record today for full and unconditional pardons for Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and Seamen Jones and Lord.

Salesgirls, secretaries, lawyers students and housewives expressed their opinions on the case to the inquiring photographer today at points along Tremont st. and the shopping district.

DORIS CASSASSA of Joy st., hairdresser—I think that even one hour of imprisonment was too much for Lieut. Massie and the others. They took the law into their own hands, but I believe any decent man would have done the same thing.

FLORENCE AUGHIE, stenographer, of East Fourth st., South Boston—It's certainly great news and a I feel very happy for Lieut. Massie and Mrs. Fortesque and the two sailors. I hope the President will pardon the mall and that Lieut. Massie and the sailors won't be discharged from the service.

MADELINE WHITEWAY, Commonwealth ave., Allston, salesgirl A full pardon is the only possible disposition that can be made in the case. They should never have been convicted or even brought to trial. The commutation is a fine thing, but I want to see a full pardon granted.

PHILIP B. DOWST, attorney, Beacon st.—I am very pleased with the decision made. I don't see how Judge Davis or Gov. Judd could have done otherwise in view of the circumstances in the case. I think they should all be given full pardons.

MARK H. LYONS, salesman, Commonwealth ave., Allston—They didn't deserve even an hour's sentence. But so long as it gets them out of the toils of the law it's fine. A full pardon should be granted to all of them immediately. I'm certainly in favor of it.

JAMES CONNOR, student, of Sutherland rd., Brookline—President Hoover should pardon them completely. The commutation of sentence is certainly pleasing, but their civil rights should be restored by the pardon. Lieut. Massie did the honorable and manly thing.

EDITH LEVITCH, secretary, of Helen st., Dorchester—Any decent or honorable person in the United States would never have convicted any of these four people. One hour was too much for any of them to serve. The only way to clear up the whole mess is to give them a pardon, then I'll be satisfied.

Darrow Cables His Thanks to Gibbons

Honolulu, May 5—In his first crowded hour following the freeing of his clients, Clarence Darrow took a few minutes' time to send a cablegram to Floyd Gibbons, his old-time Chicago friend.

Briefly sending his well-wishes and thanks for Gibbons' fiery activity in the case, he added:

"I know you are rejoicing with us."

Teachers Hit by New Ruling on Salary

Haverhill, May 5—Seventy-eight Haverhill school teachers are affected by the decision of the school board to suspend the automatic and promotional increases in salaries this year, which will mean a saving of about $4000.

This action was taken by the board in order to try and keep within the school department budget which Mayor Forrest V. Smith slashed $25,000 before he submitted it to the city council for approval.

LINDY ENVOYS AWAY AGAIN

Norfolk, Va., May 5 (INS)—The yacht Marcon punt out to sea again today presumably in an effort to enable the negotiators for the return of the Lindbergh baby to contact the kidnapers.

It was the sixth time the Marcon had left its pier at the naval base for such purpose.

On board were Joh nHughes Curtis, chief of the negotiators; Edwin B. Bruce, retired banker of Elmira, N. Y., and Lieut. George L. Richard, Navy flier.

Reports were again circulated that Col. Linbergh was on board.

$37,519,850 IN HARBORS BILL

"I would be glad to have the delegates of the mock convention know that I appreciate their action in nominating me as their candidate for the presidency."

GARNER'S LEAD ESTIMATED AT 45,000

Victory in California Makes Speaker Rallying Point, Manager Says

By the Associated Press

With clear-cut victory in California's presidential primary perched on his standard, Speaker John N. Garner of Texas today was counted back among the Democratic nomination possibilities.

Garner's own State's assured 46 convention votes, plus the California 44 gave him second place in the running, behind Franklin D. Roosevelt's 313. Behind him come J. Hamilton Lewis, 58; Alfred E. Smith, 46; James A. Reed, 36; William H. Murray, 23.

SMITH FORCES HAPPY

Every prospect is for the nomination to depend on a contest in the national convention at Chicago, through Roosevelt supporters, angling for the favorite son votes in Illinois, Ohio, Virginia and others, insisted all that the California defeat meant was probable failure to win the nomination on the first ballot. Suggestion of a Roosevelt-Garner ticket came from Lewis the Illinois favorite son.

Smith forces, not expectant of nomination for their leader, expressed jubilation at the Roosevelt defeat as a positive stoopper on his runaway pre-convention race.

Of the votes not yet assigned, 188 delegates have been chosen, but are in the doubtful class, and 446 remain to be selected, including the Texas delegates pledged to Garner who will be chosen in state convention May 24.

Garner Over 45,000 Ahead of Roosevelt

San Francisco, May 5—California's 44 votes for President in the Democratic national convention were lined up today for Speaker John N. Garner as the result of the clear-cut victory of his ticket over those of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith in the State presidential primary.

The Texan's margin of victory over Roosevelt, his closest contender, was more than 45,000 votes, with only 375 isolated precincts unreported. There was no chance these precincts would materially change the result.

GARNER STRONG IN SOUTH.

The Speaker of the House received more than half of his total vote in Los Angeles county, which holds approximately 40 per cent of the voting power of the State, and carried all but two of the southern counties, San Diego and Kern.

Roosevelt got pluralities in 37 of the State's 58 counties and Garner carried 17.

With 9896 of the 10,271 precincts counted, the vote stood:

Garner	214,647
Roosevelt	169,219
Smith	137,520

Herbert Hoover, unopposed on the Republican ballot, had amassed a total of 606,712 on returns from 9303 precincts.

Henry T. McPike, Northern California director of the Garner-for-President campaign, said:

"This is a clear victory for Speaker Garner on his merits. His friends started the movement for him in this state only a couple of months before the primary and after Gov. Roosevelt's organization had been in full stride for two years.

HOPE OF DEMOCRATS

"Having the California delegation with the Texas delegation puts Speaker Garner in a central place around which the Democrats of the nation may rally.

"We are now certain of his nomination and the election of a Democratic President is a foregone conclusion.

John B. Elliot, Garner campaign manager for Southern California sent him this message:

"Your friends in California have nominated you for president and carried this state over both Roosevelt and Smith by an enormous plurality. Your majority over Roosevelt will be 40,000 and your majority over Smith will be 50,000. Southern California carried by a huge plurality. We send you greetings and best wishes as the next president of the United States."

THEY WOULD CLEAR 'HONOR SLAYERS' OF GUILT STIGMA

"I hope the President will pardon all the 'honor slayers'—Florence Aughie, East Fourth st., South Boston.

"They should never have been convicted of killing in the first place"—Madelina Whiteway, Commonwealth ave., Allston.

"I am very well pleased with the commutation of sentence by Gov. Judd."—Atty. Philip B. Dowst, Beacon st.

"Even an hour in jail was an hour too much for the 'honor slayers."—Doris Cassassa, Joy st. (Staff photos.)

"The only way to clear it all up is to give each of the four a pardon." — Edith Levitch, Helen st., Dorchester.

New York, May 5—Hello everybody. Is everybody happy?

They're free.

Boy, oh boy, what a thrill.

It was not a pardon. It was a commutation of sentence.

They are free but that's not enough. The conviction still stands against them.

Hawaiian politics has branded that American mother, that American naval officer husband and those two American bluejackets — branded them as convicts.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Convicted of manslaughter.

The politics and politicians responsible for the conditions which permitted the assault on Mrs. Massie remain the same.

The Hawaiian sense of justice which set free the five Asiatics who assaulted the American girl remains the same.

The anti-white bitterness of the predominantly Asiatic population which brought about the conviction of the four Americans remains the same.

The Asiatic Hawaiian attitude of bitterness toward the United States Navy and all of its officers and personnel remains the same.

It was the pressure of your letters and telegrams to Washington that forced the hand of Hawaiian politics to relinquish its hold on the four defendants today.

Now for some more letters to Washington and this time to put the pressure on harder than ever. Call upon your representatives to change the Organic Act under which Asiatic politics have taken control of the Hawaiian Islands.

Call upon your representatives to place the islands under the administration of a military commission.

Hawaii is a fort. Hawaii is the nation's most important defense in the Pacific.

It is the keystone of peace.

Americanize it by placing it under a military commission.

Hawaii is Asiatic at present, and a danger to the nation.

MASSIE SENT BACK HOME

nounced it was ready to proceed with their retrial. Clarence Darrow, legal adviser to the four Americans, has urged that it be dropped in order to spare Mrs. Massie.

The fact that Mrs. Massie planned to sail for the mainland Sunday would indicate that the charges would be nolle prossed, since without her the government has no case. Dropping of the charges also would pacify the native elements.

CAME AS SURPRISE

Governor Judd commuted the sentences because of political pressure brought to bear from Washington, it was reliably reported.

Only after a radiophone conversation with Secretary of the Interior Wilbur did Gov. Judd call the defense attorneys into conference with Atty.-Gen. Harry Hewitt.

The end of the case came with unexpected suddenness. A petition for a commutation of sentence was signed by the defendants. The four then were hustled from the naval base into the courtroom of Judge Charles S. Davis, 48 hours before the appointed time for sentencing.

Ten-year terms at hard labor were imposed, but the faces of the four Americans were cheerful.

Leading the demand for a full pardon were Walter Dillingham, Honolulu capitalist, and Mrs. Anne Kluegel, militant civic leader.

"I believe the Governor hedged on the issue and took only half-way measures," said Dillingham.

Governor Judd, however, appeared unmindful of the criticism and refused to comment on possibility of further legal action.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and his wife have started packing preparatory to sailing Sunday on the Malolo for the mainland, accompanied by Darrow.

"I will be glad to get back to the United States," said Mrs. Fortescue. "The tragic events of the last few months have not ruined my life by any means. I know I will have happiness among my own people."

Lieut. Massie, who is to be given a leave of absence from duty at the submarine base, said he had no plans for the immediate future. But hoped to visit his mother in Anderson, Ky.

R. R. FIGHT OFF 'TIL MONDAY

Hearings on the disposition of the Boston & Worcester street railway franchise were postponed today until next Monday by the joint legislative committee on judiciary.

Senator J. Bradford Davis, chairmon of the committee, following a brief session, announced Governor Ely had notified the committee that all he cared to present was contained in his special message.

Lieut.-Gov. Youngman, Chairman Davis declared, was not ready to present his case in connection with his recommendation that the road's franchise be revoked, and had been given an extension of time until Monday.

Ability to Pay Rum Fine to Be Probed

Poor debtor proceedings were opened in Federal Court today by Walter Treici," alias Tracy, alias Trechokas, of South Boston, who was sent to Cambridge jail on liquor charges in lieu of a $400 fine. Treici claimed he could not pay.

When Asst. U. S. Atty. Parker charged Treici and his wife recently conveyed South Boston property and had raised money on it, the court ordered the case continued for investigation.

HARVARD SPEED YOUTH CAUGHT

William Kellum Porter, Harvard sophomore, spent the early morning hours in Quincy jail today after leading Patrolman William Ferrazzi of the Quincy police a mile-a-minute chase that ended in a Weymouth diner.

Police say Porter, whose home is in Colchester st., Brookline, was at the wheel of his car. Another student and two girl friends were passengers as the machine sped through Quincy with Patrolman Ferrazzi in pursuit.

Thinking he had outdistanced the officer Porter parked his car in the rear of a diner in Weymouth and took the girls and the other youth in for breakfast.

Ferrazzi rounded up the quartet and took them to the police station. After being questioned all but Porter were allowed to go.

Porter pleaded guilty in Quincy court to speeding, refusal to stop for an officer and driving after his license had expired. He paid $40 in fines.

Secretary Stimson and Wife Sail for Home

Cannes, France, May 5—Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson are en route to New York from France aboard the liner Vulcania today after a long period of international discussions at the disarmament conference.

Mrs. Stimson

Their departure brought an end to Secretary Stimson's third European visit since he entered office. On his arrival in Washington he will discuss with President Hoover his talks on disarmament and reparations with French, German, British and Italian statesmen.

To Mrs. Stimson the return start was one of relief.

"I'm lonesome for my friends in the United States," she said. "It's different with my husband. He has problems that keep every minute of his time occupied. But I shall be very glad to see the Statue of Liberty again."

Baker Pleads for "New Ideas" in Law

Washington, May 5—The American lawyer should be constantly in search of new ideas, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, told the American Judicature Society.

Newton D. Baker

Speaking as toastmaster at the society's annual dinner, Baker refrained from any political reference, even though introduced as "a former resident of Washington who possibly may live here again."

Baker often has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the presidency.

The society's meeting preceded the annual session of the American Law Institute, which convenes formally today.

Capt. Dollar Reported in Serious Condition

San Rafael, Cal., May 5—Although reported to have passed a restful night, Capt. Robert Dollar's condition was still serious today, according to members of his family.

Capt. Dollar

The 88-year-old veteran of Pacific coast shipping was ordered to bed a few days ago, suffering from a cold.

Visitors were again denied admittance to the Dollar home at San Rafael yesterday and indications seemed that Capt. Dollar was in for a longer seige than had been anticipated.

The presence of Melville Dollar, who flew here from Vancouver, B. C., yesterday, seemed to lend weight to the rumors concerning the seriousness of his father's condition.

added to the city's unemployed, which is unfortunate.

Employers want to pay their men only $10 a day. Bricklayers demand $2.50 an hour or $20 for eight hours. The more the workers make, the more they have to spend and the greater prosperity, within reason.

This time of unemployment, however, would seem to be a good time for arbitration.

A curious country is Mexico and puzzling to Uncle Sam. They make laws there, and then obey the laws. Because of one law, increasing the taxes on Mexican liquor, saloons are closing all along the border.

An American racketeer crossed the border from California to Mexico to enjoy himself, taking his bodyguard, had an argument with a Mexican citizen and instructed his bodyguard to "do his stuff."

The bodyguard replied: "Not here. We are in Mexico. After we get back across the border, anything you say. Too dangerous here."

CAPONE, YESTERDAY'S 'BIG SHOT,' TODAY A NUMBER

REMOVAL OF CONVICTS' STIGMA ASIED

UNWED MOTHER FIGHTS FOR AWARD OF $20,000

BOSS HOODLUM IS 40886 IN PRISON GARB

Jeers of Other Prisoners Still Ring in His Ears as He Is Clipped and Listed

Atlanta, Ga., May 5 (INS)—Alphonse Capone, alias Al Brown, alias Scarface Capone, alias Albert Costa, alias Ross, sometime known as Snorky, is a man of yesterday.

Today he is federal prisoner No. 40,886.

So in a number that is stenciled across the back of the faded blue and white jumper and on the legs of the overalls he is sentenced to wear for ten years, there comes to a dismal end the criminal career of Al Capone, gangster, racketeer, booze boss.

PASSES INTO OBLIVION

So passes into oblivion and from front pages of a thousand newspapers the man of whom Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson said he was the leader of a band of insurrectionists whose outlaw camp was in the Lexington Hotel at Chicago and whose activities constituted treason against the laws and government of the United States.

As America's most publicized gangster began his first day of regulated existence with "first call" at 4:45 a. m., within the confines of Atlanta penitentiary's bleak walls today. He expressed the hope that officials will see fit to assign him to work in the prison kitchen.

"I trust the warden likes spaghetti," remarked Capone, whose skill in handling a ladle or a frying pan is as highly regarded as his familiarity with a "gat."

GETS A STRANGE WELCOME

Whether Capone will realize his desire to work in the kitchen or will be assigned to some other department was expected to be decided by the prison authorities today. He probably will be sent either to the tailor shop or the laundry. Later, is he is a good boy, he may get clerical work.

Awakening in his special receiving cell after his first night in the penitentiary, the jeers and catcalls of Capone's fellow-inmates still rang in his ears as he recalled the strange welcome accorded him when he arrived last night.

A somewhat sorry figure was this erstwhile Napoleon of gangdom, as his huge, bulky form moved through the penitentiary's great gates. His palpable nervousness was reflected in the downcast expression on his face as the prison train, bearing him from Chicago, drew in and through the Union Station.

Manacled to his guardian, Marshal Henry W. C. Laubenheimer, the gangster was placed in the waiting automobile of Marshal Lewis Crawford of Atlanta and the four-mile drive to the prison gates began. The headlight beams of Crawford's car was a signal to the convicts that Capone was approaching.

GREETED WITH BEDLAM

Instantly the entire prison became a bedlam of howls, jeers and catcalls. The noise visibly perplexed and disturbed Capone as he stepped from the automobile and walked to the gates where Warden A. C. Aderhold awaited him.

Capone checked in his flashy and expensive clothing for a term that is sure to make it out of style when he gets it back. He was given a uniform of cotton shirt, trousers and jacket, all grayish blue.

'WORD BATTLE' IN U. S. COURT

Dispute over the words "delirious" and "unconscious" enlivened the trial of the $5000 suit of Albert Noyes of Chestnut st., Chelsea, a longshoreman, against master and owners of the steamship Oregonian in Federal Court today.

Noyes, who was injured by falling through a hatchway of the Oregonian while unloading the vessel at Commonwealth Pier July 1, 1929, testified in cross-examination he might have told his story to "a Mr. Mahoney" while "delirious."

Atty. John Lorenz, counsel for the company, asked if Noyes had not said he was "unconscious" and therefore could not have remembered what he said.

Atty. James Baldwin, counsel for Noyes, called Judge McLellan's attention to the fact that Noyes said "delirious" and not "unconscious."

Atty. Lorenz countered saying "delirious" and "unconscious" are the same thing.

"You better consult your dictionary," interrupted the Court.

The jury tittered and the counsel flushed.

Al Capone Misses His Beer in Heat of Atlanta Cell

Atlanta, Ga., May 5—Federal Convict No. 40886 remarked today that it was hot—and that he missed his beer.

Scarface Al Capone, with his hair clipped as close as the black stubble on his jowls—just another guest of the government in the Atlanta Penetentiary—decided today that he might as well talk.

He talked first about the heat and then about the beer and then about himself and his decision to take his "medicine"—and then he opened up and made a few real disclosures regarding a proposition he once put up to Chicago's "Secret Six" and the hale and hearty health of his booze racket under the regime of William Hale Thompson, former mayor of "Chi."

OFFER TURNED DOWN

Once, he revealed he had agrede to put a stop to all bombings in Chicago if the "Secret Six" would give him a free hand in the beer and liquor racket.

He was not only greatly surprised, but chagrined and embarrassed when they respectfully declined.

"Col. Robert Isham Randolph, organizer of the 'Secret Six,' came to me in Florida," said Capone. "He asked me to help him stop industrial and commercial bombings. Of course, I didn't know anything about them because that violence stuff wasn't in my line, but I told him I'd run down the bombers and put them to work in my organization.

"I laid my cards on the table and I asked him to lay his. All I wanted was to be left alone. Well, whot do you think I got?"

Capone shrugged his shoulders. He couldn't then, and he can't now, understand why his proposition should have been turned down.

"It's hot," he said. "I can stand the heat, though—but I'll miss my beer."

BUT $10 A CASE PROFIT

He didn't discuss his beer business which is reputed to have netted his hoodlum organization as much as $10,000,000 a year. But he did discus his liquor racket and indicated it brought him a profit of $50,000 a month during the Thompson rule of civic Chicago.

"My profits from the booze have been overrated by the government," he said. "My best times were under Mayor Thompson and my best months were 5000 cases of whiskey. With all expenses out, overheads, payoffs, losses through raids and posting bonds the net profit never was more than $10 a case."

He still thinks his racket was "a good thing for Chicago." He figures his booze business took hundreds of men out of the paths of vicious crime, driving trucks, tending breweries and stills. And none of these men—to hear him tell it—ever indulged in any unpleasant violence such as bombings and hijackings. Killings, of course, were beyond imagining.

If he likes ten years in the penitentiary as well as he liked the first night, everything will be O. K. by him, but down underneath the surface he is smouldering over being made "the goat."

DIDN'T PLAY SQUARE

"I'll be made an issue in the next presidential campaign," he said. "They'll be saying 'We sent Capone to jail.' It wouldn't be so bad if they didn't use the income tax law for political purposes.

"There's a lot of big men in Chicago who beat the government out of most of the taxes they ought to pay, and they get away with it." He named several.

"I tried to settle with the government and they used it against me. I don't think that's playing square, but they've got me and I'll have to take my medicine."

Again he mopped his brow and remarked that it was hot, and his thoughts went back to the beer. He remarked in his best drawing-room manner—or cell block manner:

"The Literary Digest Poll is encouraging. Their polls are always representative and the 3 to 1 wet vote, with only two dry states, shows the sentiment is going against prohibition.

"I'm not just starting a new leaf," he went on. "I'm opening a new book and the old one is closed for good. I'm through with politics and all the other rackets.

RESOLVES TO BE GOOD

"I'm going to go along with everybody and co-operate. I'll take what they give me here for two reasons. One is, the only don is to go along and be a good don is to along and be a good prisoner. The other is (and he grinned) I won't have anything to say about it."

He's a pretty good cook, he said, and added: "I hope the warden likes spaghetti. I'm going to take an interest in sports here, baseball, of course. You got to keep busy to keep from committing suicide or going daffy—and I'm not ready for either one yet."

DEATH THREATS FOR GOLF STAR

Cleveland, May 5 (AP)—An attempt to extort $25,000 from Ellsworth H. Augustus, wealthy real estate man and nationally-known golf star, under penalty of death was revealed today. The 80-acre Augustus estate is under a heavy guard.

A letter demanding the money and threatening death unless its terms were complied with, was received last Monday by Augustus, he said today.

Since then detectives have trailed Augustus daily. His wife and children—Daneen, 9, a pupil at Hathaway-Brown girls' school; Albert Anthony 2nd, 7, who attends University school here, and Elizabeth, 4—also were being guarded.

Forfeits $3000 Car for Dozen of Beer

Donald J. McCormack of Cambridge pleaded nolo today in federal court to a complaint of dry agents charging him with transporting a dozen bottles of beer in his auto. He was fined $1.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Stone told the court that McCormack's car is valued at $3000 and has been forfeited to the government, which, he said, was punishment enough for the offense.

KIN FIGHT FOR FULL PARDONS

Led by the kin of Albert O. Jones and Edward J. Lord, Massachusetts today joined the country-wide demand for full and unconditional pardons of the Honolulu "honor slaying" defendants.

Mrs. Emily Jones of Willard st., New Bedford, mother of the Jones youth, and Edward J. Lord of Milford, father of Lord, started organizations among their friends with a view toward written petitions on the move.

ASK CONCERTED MOVE

Through the Boston Evening American they both asked that Massachusetts sympathizers join them with letters to Gov. Lawrence Judd of Hawaii, who commuted ten-year sentences to one hour, but did not grant full pardons to the Massachusetts sailors, Mrs. Grace Fortescue and Lieut. Thomas M. Massie.

Mrs. Jones highly praised newspapers for bring the case to public attention in the United States.

"We must not rest until full pardons are given," she said today. "Naturally, we rejoiced over the commutation. No mother wants to see her son go to prison. But the circumstances of the case call for a pardon."

Mrs. Jones showered praise upon Mrs. Anne Kluegel, president of the Honolulu citizens' committee for good government, who led the fight for the "honor slayer."

"Mrs. Kluegel must be a wonderful woman. She certainly has done wonderful work and I am going to write her a long letter of thanks," she said.

FATHER CONGRATULATED

In Milford, the father of Lord was the recipient of hundreds of congratulatory messages on the commutation of his son's sentence.

When he learned of the move for a pardon, he said:

"I will not rest until Edward, the Jones boy, Mrs. Fortescue and Lieut. Massie are cleared of this terrible stain.

"I hope everybody who is interested in this case, especially those in Massachusetts, will sit down and write letters to Gov. Judd. Ask Gov. Judd to grant pardons to them all.

"I could hardly sleep last night for joy over my son escaping a prison term. Now I will not sleep until a full pardon is granted."

SOMETHING FUNNY

Alfred Jones, brother of the New Bedford sailor and now a Cambridge paint salesman, scored the hour's imprisonment today.

"That hour in jail brands them as convicts and probably will mean they will have to leave the service," he said.

"I see no reason why officials at Washington or Gov. Judd could not have given the four complete pardons. There was something funny in the way that jury acted."

FALL GOES FREE NEXT SUNDAY

Washington, May 5 (AP)—Attorney-General Mitchell said today he would order New Mexico State Penitentiary authorities to release Albert B. Fall Sunday.

He explained a judgment for $100,000 stands against the former Secretary of the Interior for the fine he failed to pay. It was imposed, with a year and a day sentence, after Fall's conviction of accepting a bribe in the naval oil reserve leases.

The fine is collectable whenever Fall is able to pay it, and the judgment "stands as a legal charge."

CASE FILED FOR WEDDING GIFT

Thomas Keavey of Justin rd., Brighton, got his first wedding present today, even before he is married—and while it was nothing you could see or that can be laid out on exhibition with the other presents to come, still it was eminently satisfactory.

The present came from Judge Zottoli, who never saw Keavey before but who filed an overtime parking charge against him when the judge, in municipal court, learned that Keavey is to be married next Monday and that the bride-to-be was waiting in the car when it was tagged.

"Well, here's your first wedding present," said Judge Zottoli as he filed the case.

STORY OF LOVE FOR FORSYTH IS BARED

Lunch Chain Official Is Named by Stoughton Woman as Father of Her Child

Miss Lurena Powers, 34, of Stoughton, former cash girl in a Boston lunchroom, bared a story of illicit love to a jury in Superior Court at Dedham today as she fought for $20,000 of the estate of Frank P. Forsyth, who was vice-president and general manager of the lunch chain for which she worked.

She declared that Forsyth promised her the $20,000 on condition that she refrain from taking any action against him as the father of her child, Gloria, now 11 years old.

SAYS SHE GOT $5200

The little girl was in court as her mother told the story of her alleged affair with her former employer. Later the child testified.

The mother testified that Forsyth failed to carry out his promise to pay her the $20,000.

Besides his business affairs, Forsyth was well known as owner of the Forsyth Kennels in Stoughton. He died in January, 1931. He was married and had eight children.

From 1927 to the day of his death she received $5200 from him, she estimated, on request of counsel for the estate.

GIRL CALLS HIM "DADDY"

"I called Mr. Forsyth daddy," testified Gloria, who followed her mother on the witness stand. "He was good to me and remembered me on Christmas and on my birthday. He told me he was going to send me to art school."

Shown a photograph of him and asked who it was, she said:

"My father."

Mrs. Forsyth, the widow, was in court to assist the executor of the estate in fighting Miss Powers' suit.

George Beal of Norton, a dog breeder, testified that for three years he and his wife addressed Miss Powers as "Mrs. Forsyth," and he added:

"Icalled on Forsyth one day and the child came in. I said to him, 'That's a child you certainly can't deny is yours.' Foryth said, 'I guess you're right.'"

2 BIND AND ROB VET OF $500 IN WESTON

Police are seeking a Boston gunman as one of the pair who held up Frank Hughes, 60-year-old recluse and veteran of the Spanish War, when he answered a knock on the door of his home in Boston Post road, Weston, late last night.

After robbing Hughes of $500, the bandits, one of whom wore a white handkerchief over his face, tied Hughes' hands and feet and lashed him to a couch.

The robbery is believed by police to have been planned by a local youth, who obtained the aid of a Boston gunman in staging it.

Hughes, owner of several pieces of property in Weston, had collected rentals during the day and had also received his pension money. It is believed the Weston youth was aware Hughes had the money in the house.

OFFICER PLEADS FOR NEGRO BOY

Probate Officer Thomas W. Devlin in Superior Court today pleaded for leniency for William L. Bolling, 18, negro, who had assaulted Devlin with a hammer, fracturing two ribs and inflicting other injuries.

The attack, which Bolling admitted, occurred a year ago when Devlin went to the boy's home on Rockland st. to check up on his probation. Bolling disappeared and was arrested recently.

Devlin asked Judge Cox not to send him to the reformatory or the Lyman School and suggested the Industrial school at Shirley. The court instead placed the charge on file, warning the boy that he would get the miximum if brought into court again on any complaint. He must report regularly to Devlin as probation officer.

BOY KNIFED IN SCRUB GAME

Young America's grand old game of "scrub baseball" received a figurative black eye and two literal knife wounds today.

Louis Stravopulos, 19, of Ellsworth st., Chelsea, was in district court charged with assault with a knife with intent to kill John Cunio, 16, of Fifth st., Chelsea. Cunio, with wounds in his hand and back sewed up in Chelsea Memorial Hospital, was also in court.

It seems there was a pick-up scrub game in progress in a vacant lot. Stravopulos got a hit and tried to steal second. Cunio, playing second base, said he was "out." Stravopulos claimed he was "safe."

There was, unfortunately, no umpire.

The defendant is alleged to have unclasped a pocket knife and stabbed Cunio. All the players then ganged up and pursued Stravopulos with bats and boulders. He was held in $2000 for the grand jury.

LAYS FIRE BLAME ON SMOKERS

Careless smokers are responsible for more woodland and forest fires in New England than any other one cause, it was revealed today by T. E. Reed of the weather bureau at Boston.

Data compiled by Reed shows that during the five-year period from 1926 to 1930, smokers caused 29.2 per cent of all forest fires in New England, while in 1930 alone they were responsible for 36.7 per cent of the fires.

Railroads were second as a cause of the fires, undetermined third, debris burning lists fourth, incendiarism rates sixth and campers seventh with a low percentage of 2.4.

New England averaged 3645 fires during the five-year period, with a yearly average damage of $612,462.

The 72d birthday of the creator of Peter Pan falls on next Monday, but he celebrated it yesterday, and today MacDonald underwent the operation, which was successful in saving his right eye.

Victory for Democracy

The Supreme Court's decision of Monday, May 2, which invalidates the barring of Negroes from primary elections through party membership qualifications, is the third blow against disfranchisement in southern states struck by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People feels that these decisions are vital to the very essence of the democratic idea in America. And it intends to press the fight for full enfranchisement of all Negro citizens who can and do meet the tests imposed for voting upon all other classes and groups of United States citizens, irrespective of race, creed or color.

Those Anti-Bonus Letters

A Boston brokerage house gave us the enclosed letter to Congressmen to send, "assuring us of our jobs and a raise in pay" if we sent copies of the letter opposing the soldiers' bonus. I did not send mine because I thought the soldiers should get the bonus. Most of the employes sent them as they were told if they didn't send them they would be discharged. After sending them they cut the pay and discharged half of the employes. This might be of use to your paper at some future date—you are so fair in matters of this kind.

The form letter sent to Senator Walsh and Congressmen, follows:

"Dear Sir: It has come to my attention, through the daily press, that Congress is considering legislation to liquidate the adjusted compensation certificates now held by ex-service men.

"In my opinion the enactment of such legislation would injure business and be very detrimental to the country's welfare and would greatly tend to delay the return of normal business conditions.

"Therefore, I wish to register my protest against the bill in its present or qualified form."

"My best investment IN 20 YEARS OF HOUSEKEEPING"

—SAYS MRS. G. M. H.* OF STONEHAM

"I really can't praise my electric range enough. I can always depend upon its even temperature, so I don't have to keep watching things for fear they'll burn. And with my double roaster, which holds in the moist heat, I never have to baste.

"My electric range is very clean, too, and heats up quickly. It is economical to run and also saves me money on my food, for the meat juices stay in the meat now . . . as they can't be lost through ventilators or seams in the oven. You can imagine how this improves the food flavors, too."

Notice how Mrs. H.* emphasizes the economy of electric cooking. First, it saves on food because electric cooking prevents food shrinkage. Then the special low cooking rate for electricity reduces the month-to-month operating cost. And, finally, recent price reductions enable us to offer you modern electric ranges at substantial savings.

BRITAIN WON'T FACE TEST ON IRISH OATH

London, May 5 (AP)—The House of Commons worked itself up into an uproar over the Irish question today when Geoffrey Mander, National Liberal from Wolverhampton, asked the secretary for dominions whether the government would submit the oath of allegiance to a judicial tribunal.

When the National Liberal first tried to submit his question, he was howled down and intense excitement prevailed until the Laborites protested to the speaker against the behavior of a large part of the House.

When calm had been restored and the question had finally been put, J. H. Thomas, the secretary for dominions, replied that Ireland had not asked for consultations and that the British government could not for the present do more than call attention to the violaion of the treaty of 1921 involved in the Free State's unilateral action.

The question was framed thus:

"Is the government prepared to submit the oath of allegiance in dispute between Great Britain and the Irish Free State to an appropriate judicial tribunal?"

President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State has submitted a bill to the Dail Eireann which would abolish the oath to the Crown as contained in the Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Free State.

The measure has passed two readings and will come up for the third reading next Wednesday.

INCOME TAX BOOST LOOMS

Washington, May 5 (AP)—The revised revenue bill was declared $100,000,000 short of the goal of balancing the budget by Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee and the committee was called back to look for new taxes.

Smoot pointed to even higher increases in the income taxes as one way of finding the additional $100,000,000 which appeared to be necessary after the first survey of the rewritten legislation.

Taxes on tires or import duties on rubber were among the propositions under consideration as the weary committee reassembled for an afternoon session.

Howling down further proposals for changes in the complex bill today, it agreed to only one. The 25 per cent admissions tax for prize fights was cut down to ten per cent but the 45 cents exemption on these tickets was removed.

NEW CATHEDRAL IS DEDICATED

Washington, May 5 (AP)—Before a distinguished group of national and international leaders, the partially completed Washington Episcopal Cathedral today opened formally its great choir and sanctuary.

President Hoover had planned to attend, but a press of governmental business prevented, so Mrs. Hoover went in his stead. The widows of two former presidents, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. William Howard Taft, were among the invited.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, led the services.

Cabinet members, justices of the supreme court, senators and diplomats were in the gathering at the ceremonies.

The great gothic structure, planned as a "house of prayer for the nation," has been under construction many years. Directly under the portion dedicated today is the crypt-like Bethlehem chapel where Woodrow Wilson and other distinguished Americans are buried. The central nave of the cathedral and its great towers still are to be erected.

PUBLIC'S IGNORANCE OF TAX LAW AID TO GOUGERS

Many Frighten Too Easily at Sight of Warrant in Constable's Hands

(This is the sixth in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion which is enriching constables and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.)

Tax collection racketeers are aided in their gouging of the public by constables' badges, brusque approach, display of warrants, threats of jail and, last but not least, by psychology which they work to the limit.

The average citizen is scared almost speechless when an officer of the law suddenly pounces on him with a warrant for his arrest.

In his excitement he lacks the presence of mind to question appalling extra charges, out of all proportion to the original bill, charges made possible by a vicious law which makes it easy for unscrupulous collectors to rob victims.

PETTY THIEVERY

Constables might be enraged to be called petty thieves, but that is exactly what they are when they commit petty larceny by pocketing extras which should not be added to a delinquent bill.

The taxpayer with courage enough to protest is the exception. Thousands pay, swallow their indignation and say nothing. This silent submission has given impetus to the racket which has come to be a state scandal.

Intelligent taxpayers are often ignorant of their rights and ignorant of the law under which the racketeers operate. The authorized penalty charges are sufficiently broad and elastic to cloak dishonest methods.

Property owners and taxpayers generally ought to be familiar with the law in order to be prepared to trip up dishonest collectors. For that purpose the Boston Evening American quotes the law in today's instalment.

2 SIDES TO ISSUE

There are two sides to every issue. There are individuals who are chronic tax dodgers and who will go to any extreme to avoid paying taxes and other legal debts. This newspaper holds no brief for them. Its sole interest is to put a stop to tax abuses.

Every male inhabitant of the Commonwealth, whether citizen or alien, is expected to pay a poll tax and every male inhabitant above the age of 20, whether naturalized or not, must pay the old age pension tax. Officials complain that many seem to be ignorant of this obligation.

Until a change occurred in the law last year, tax collections were made under section 15, Chapter 60 of the General Laws of Massachusetts. This section allowed only $1 for arrest and made no allowance for custody. It allowed eight cents a mile for travel expense and placed no limit, other than the qualification "actual travelling expense." It allowed only 20 cents for a summons, 25 cents for written demand and 50 cents for a warrant.

> ### Are You a Victim?
> Have YOU been caught in the tax collection racket and forced to pay a sum out of all proportion to your tax, or go to jail?
>
> If you have, write your experience to the Tax Editor, Boston Evening American, giving amount of tax, amount of forced payment, and how, if possible, it was computed by the collection agent, the date of tax and of payment and to whom the money was paid. Your name will not be published, if you so desire.

An amendment, approved June 10, 1931, boosted the fee for arrest from $1 to $2, provided a new charge of $4 for custody of the person arrested, allowed eight cents a mile for travel, which must not exceed $5, and allowed 35 cents instead of 25 cents for written demand. Thus the amended law, as can be seen, added to the penalty costs and increased opportunity for abusive charges. Constables complain that in limiting travel expense to $5 it imposed a hardship on them, as it does not provide for a return fare in the event of a trip from Boston to the western part of the State.

As a matter of fact that is the most redeeming feature in the amended law, in that it tends to discourage the use of constables from distant points. Professional tax collection bureaus in Boston and other large cities may fuss and fume about this cut in travel expense, but it hasn't stopped them from sending collectors all over the State to cities and towns which "farm out" stacks of unpaid tax bills to them for collection.

"TECHNICAL ARRESTS"

Constables working out of Boston in automobiles are fairly well covered in motor travel expense by the $5 limit and when they collect bills by wholesale the extras pile up into such handsome profits that they don't have to worry about the law not allowing for a return fare.

Tax racketeers have found their biggest harvest in what they term "technical arrests." This means that they show a warrant and notify a taxpayer that he will be arrested if he doesn't settle. When he settles he really avoids even the technical arrest by paying up what is demanded on the spot but is charged $2 for arrest and $4 for custody. If two or four or six persons paid the $6 for arrest and custody in a single day why fret about the mileage home?

Critics of the present system contend that collectors should be confined to their immediate district. Many citizens insist that collectors should be paid by respective cities and towns and keep the money for home circulation, instead of handing rich plums to distant collection agencies. The racketeers squawk at this suggestion. It would sound the death knell of their racket.

CITIES PROFIT LITTLE

Cities and towns profit little from the present method of collecting back tax bills, but it has proved a popular business for the racketeers. Certain city and town collectors are said to receive their share of the racket profits.

Remember that the arrest and custody and other extra charges can be made under the law on each separate tax bill. If a constable holds an overdue poll tax, old age pension tax and excise tax he can, if he pleases, treble the penalty charges, which, in the event of technical arrest and custody, would be an additional $18, minus other incidental costs.

The system really has developed a side-industry which delinquent tax payers are compelled to support. The tax racket is vicious enough in normal time, but is especially deplorable in this period of depression.

Here is the amended law, Chapter 434 of the Acts and Resolves of 1931, which every taxpayer should study and be conversant with, and it is for that purpose that the Evening American publishes it today:

The following charges and fees, and no other, when accrued, shall severally be added to the amount of the tax and collected as part thereof.

1—For the written demands provided for by law, 35 cents;

2—For preparing advertisement of sale, 50 cents for each parcel of real estate included in the advertisement;

3—For advertisement of sale in newspapers, the cost thereof;

4—For posting notices of sale, 50 cents for each parcel of real estate or lot of goods included in the notice;

5—For affidavit, 25 cents for each parcel of land included therein;

6—For recording affidavit, one dollar for each parcel of land included therein;

7—For preparing deed, two dollars;

8—For each hour's time, or part thereof, actually expending in selling as certified by him under Section 51, two dollars;

9—For a warrant to distrain or arrest, 50 cents;

10—For distraining goods, one dollar and cost thereof;

11—For notice of warrant if collection is made without service, or arrest, one dollar;

12—For selling goods distrained, the cost thereof;

13—For arresting the body, two dollars and travel at the rate of eight cents per mile, from the office of the collector to the place where the arrest is made, but in no event more than five dollars;

14—For custody of the body arrested, four dollars;

15—For service of demand and notice, under Section 53, if served in the manner required by law for the service of subpoenas on witnesses in civil cases, 50 cents and travel at the rate of eight cents per mile from the office of the collector to the place where the service is made, but in no event more than five dollars;

The collector shall account to the town treasurer for all charges and fees collected by him; but the town shall reimburse or credit him for all expenses incurred by him hereunder, including all lawful charge and fees paid or credited by him for collecting taxes.

(Another instalment in the tax racketeering series will be published in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.)

1 SHOT IN RUM CHASE AT SEA

New London, May 5—One man was dying of bullet wounds and three others, the crew of the alleged rum runner Scipo, of Bridgeport, were captured off Fisher's Island late last night after a chase.

The wounded man, known only as Charlie, was suffering with a bullet wound in his head.

The three men under arrest are Capt. Joseph Knowles of New Bedford, Mass.; Thomas A. Stone of Fairfield, Ct., and John White of Bridgeport, Ct.

Mellon Hasn't Bought His Short Court Pants Yet

London, May 5 (INS)—Andrew W. Mellon, new United States ambassador to Great Britain, has not yet bought his "royal court breeches."

Moreover, it was learned today that he wavering between the conservative correctness of ordinary formal attire and the old world elegance of silk breeches fastened at the knee with rhinestone buckles.

"To tell you honestly," he said, "I fail to understand the great interest in this matter. It really doesn't seem important to me whether breeches are long or short.

"However, I shall inquire today as to what my predecessors wore."

Ambassador Mellon was reminded of the approbation showered by Britain upon George Harvey when the latter, as ambassador, made his Buckingham Palace debut resplendent in black silk pants.

He was reminded of the flood of ridicule with which former Ambassador Dawes greeted the suggestion that he emulate Harvey's example.

Bride Tomorrow

Adele Astaire, queen of Broadway dancers, whose wedding to Lord Charles Cavendish, is announced to take place in London tomorrow instead of May 20 as originally planned.

DANCING QUEEN TO WED LORD

New York, May 5—Not two weeks hence—but tomorrow is the wedding date for Adele Astaire, queen of Broadway dancers, and Lord Charles Cavendish, second son of the Duke of Devonshire.

The marriage will take place in a simple setting in the private chapel at Chatsworth house, the Duke's country home in England.

This, according to word received here by Fred Astaire, Adele's dancing brother.

Lord Cavendish has just recovered from an appendicitis operation in London, but he refuses to postpone the marriage on that account.

He met Adele several years ago while he was clerking for J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York, and they announced their engagement last October, while Fred and Adele were starring in the "Band Wagon."

Six Escape Burning Gloucester Schooner

Fall River, May 5 (AP)—The six members of the crew of the Gloucester schooner Amelia M. Pereira, which was burned in Long Island Sound, arrived here today aboard the steamship Plymouth of the New England Steamship Company.

Capt. Elmme M. Pereira said the fire started from a short circuit. When the blaze got beyond control the crew went over the side in lifeboats.

ANTI-DRYS WIN IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, May 5 (AP)—Two of Indiana's congressmen were defeated for renomination in Tuesday's primaries and in another district the incumbent faced a close race.

Anti-prohibitionists hailed the victory of Mrs. Virginia E. Jenckes of Terre Haute, who won the Democratic nomination in the sixth district over Rep. Courtland C. Gillen of Greencastle. She wil lcontest at the polls in November with the veteran Republican representative, Fred S. Purnell of Attica.

Redistricting, which threw Congressmen Eugene B. Crowe of Bedford and Harry C. Canfield of Batesville into the same district, resulted in elimination of Canfield. Crowe won the Democratic nomination.

Results in a number of districts indicated November contests over the Prohibition question. The wets campaigned strongly against those who opposed the Beck-Linthicum resolution for submission of a repeal amendment.

Belgians Balk at Nude Figures in 'Living Tableau' of Art

Ghent, Belgium, May 5 (AP)—A quarrel over what to do with the unveiled nude figures in the famous several-paneled painting "Adoration of the Lamb," prevented its reproduction in "living tableau" during the celebration of the 500th anniversary of its hanging here today.

The picture, painted by the Brothers Jean and Hubert Van Eyck, hangs in the Cathedral of St. Bevons. Its fifth centenary is to be celebrated.

Originally it was planned to stage a reproduction with living figures, but this was finally vetoed because some of the nudes, particularly the figures of Adam and Eve, are entirely unveiled. A sharp clash of opinion preceded the final decision.

A special paragraph in the treaty of Versailles provided for removal of the panels from a Berlin museum to which they had been taken.

Two Die in Crash

Perry, Me., May 5 (AP)—Harry Dorr, 26, and Aubrey Flagg, 32, were killed when Dorr's auto ran off the road and overturned last night.

MEDFORD DEATH INVESTIGATED

Medford police today were investigating the death of Edward A. Irwin, 29, of Central st., Arlington.

Irwin died in Lawrence Memorial Hospital, early today, of a fractured skull suffered, police say, at the home of Mrs. Mary Brennan, South st., Medford.

First information police received of Irwin's presence in the hospital was when Dr. John Gahan notified them he had been called to the Brennan home and found Irwin unconscious at the foot of the cellar stairs.

Before he died, Irwin told officers he had called at the Brennan home, and after remaining an hour could not remember anything. He said he had called to see Thomas Brennan.

The latter told police he was aroused by a noise in the cellar and found Irwin unconscious.

The place was raided late last night. Two employes were arrested and a quantity of liquor seized.

SOCIETY EATS HOT DOGS

MRS. B. NEAL was a good patron of the hot dog stand at the Back Alley Fair held yesterday in the back yards between Exeter and Fairfield sts., to benefit the Farm and Garden Association.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

WHAT A HURLY-BURLY AT THE BACK ALLEY FAIR . . . and the alley absolutely packed with people . . .! Young and old . . . new rich and new poor strolled up and down, in and out of the various backyards which were turned for the day into exotic purchasing marts . . .

MRS. ROBERT STOWE BRADLEY

* * *

It reminded us of the sidewalk bazaars of the East where Oriental merchants sit cross-legged on rugs and call out their wares . . . only of course Boston grand dames did NOT sit crossed-legged . . .!

* * *

But they did eat hot dogs and have their fortunes told and cajole people to take a chance on the white mice race . . . ours was named Al Smith and he lost . . . and display the MOST tempting handwork from the Farm and Garden Shop . . . we had hard work to get away with carfare back to the office.

* * *

And believe me the depression isn't going to hit that organization while Mrs. Robert Stowe Bradley is at the ticket gate . . . she simply refused to allow us to pass until we had paid ten cents admission . . . editor please note.

* * *

Good Time for Workers and Patrons

IT WAS NOTHING LESS THAN A GRAND GOOD TIME for workers and patrons alike and was a huge success from the point of view of amusement as well as dollars unhoarded. One very attractive "backyard" was turned into an alley tearoom, most effectively furnished with painted rattan tables and chairs, presided over by the ravishing Mrs. Wheelwright of the Treasure Shop . . . her Titian hair quite enough to invite one out of the hot sun into the coolness of her tent.

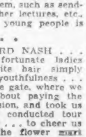
* * *

New Yacht

PRETTY MRS. CHARLES H. GILBERT was all of a twitter over the Punch and Judy Show which she took at the last minute to fill in for a friend who was called away . . . she is such a sweet-looking person and told us quite calmly about their yacht burning up last year and the launching of a new one, the "Chiro" . . . meaning fish . . . this spring. The Gilberts will close their lovely town house for the summer and live on the yacht . . . Fair winds, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert!

* * *

POPULAR MRS. ALVAN T. FULLER cashiered at the Hot Dog gate in fresh green smock and garden hat . . . she is such a delightful, natural person to meet and chat with, we naturally asked about her daughter, Lydia, who is being presented this season . . . she told us that her "party" will be on October 21 at their magnificent home on Beacon st. . . . the adjective being OURS, of course . . . and we can imagine that it will be one of the most brilliant balls of the season.



Mrs. Fuller

* * *

IT IS ALWAYS DELIGHTFUL to meet Mrs. William Dana Orcutt because she is sure to ask how OUR girls are and to suggest some lovely way to make life happy for them, such as sending tickets for her lectures, etc. Her interest in young people is contagious.

* * *

MRS. EDWARD NASH . . . one of those fortunate ladies whose snow-white hair simply enhances their youthfulness . . . greeted us at the gate, where we were arguing about paying the ten cents admission, and took us on a personally conducted tour through the fair . . . to cheer us up perhaps. The flower mart was too lovely with garden furniture from the Farm and Garden Shop . . . a thought for you gardeners!

* * *

THE LUNCHEON TENT WAS an invitation, a bower of greens . . . and delicious food was served, we heard . . . it was far too crowded to get anywhere near it. Fair debutantes waited on you if you DID succeed. Elizabeth and Jane Wheeler, cute sisters and Junior Leaguers, assisted everywhere and we saw Sister Hovey with a natty green apron on. She informed us that she is still racing at Marblehead in the "frostbite races," but will not go down to Long Island this week-end for the races there . . .

* * *

NANCY HALLOWELL and her fiance, Henry Heckescher, is it? . . . strolled up and down the alley arm in arm . . ., and did we see them purchasing a darning-bag at the needlework table? That would make an excellent start for a home, wouldn't it?

* * *

A May Wedding

AND WE PICKED UP A BIT of news for you . . . don't tell! "Frankie" Hamlin is going to be married to Marie Waterbury of Buffalo on Saturday, May 28, in New York. Although Miss Waterbury is not related to the Gotham and Long Island Waterburys, she is very popular and attractive, a "good time" girl. Alexander Fairfield Wadsworth, son of Philip Wadsworth, will be Mr. Hamlin's best man, and a brother of Miss Waterbury's will be on the usher list. B. Nason Hamlin, sporting father of "Frankie," will be pleased to have him settle down and assume his duties as head of the house of Hamlin, no doubt.

How Does a Woman Champion Manage?

Women champions cannot have "off days." Day after day of practice and play, and matches that permit no postponements. Then how do they manage during these trying times when other women are sunk with pain? They meet these periodic emergencies with Midol, and they don't ever experience a twinge of periodic pain.

Harmless as it is, a Midol tablet blocks all possibility of periodic pain for hours at a stretch. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes. Just ask the druggist for Midol.

Piques, Linens in Spotlight

By DOROTHY RAE

New York, May 5 (US)—Piques and linens continue to hold the spotlight for summer.

The shirtwaist frock of pastel pique is one of the most successful styles of the season, with its waist like a polo shirt, its trim belt and its straight, tailored skirt. If it's made of wide-wale pique and if it's trimmed with big pearl buttons, you know it's new.

Summer redingotes are being shown with dark pique or linen coats and printed lawn dresses. A particularly smart one has a navy blue pique coat with cape sleeves and flaring lapels edged in white pique, worn over a frock of navy and white printed lawn.

A mess-boy silhouette costume that is bound to be a headliner in the fashion news has a short, fitted, double-breasted jacket of navy blue, wide wale pique, with short sleeves. Cuffs and lapels are of navy and white polka-dotted linen. It is worn over a one-piece frock of the navy pique.

A white linen ensemble, consisting of dress and separate cape, is one of the most useful additions to a summer wardrobe. An example of this seen about town has a frock of white linen with a bib front, the shoulders and tiny sleeves being of red and white linen in wide stripes. The belt is of the striped linen, and the white linen cape not quite reaching the elbows, may be worn on or off.

A white linen suit worn with a blouse of deep blue or red with tiny white polka dots its something else to think about.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

—By Charles Hanson Towne—

The excitement of getting off to the country, especially when the good weather has authentically begun, is a state of mind that one hopes one may never lose, no matter how many years march on.

I will not say that I awoke on the night before my departure for "Shingle Blessedness," but I enjoyed only a fitful slumber, filled with dreams of hawthorne and dogwood; which may be an indication of a certain childishness within me.

I am not in the least ashamed of any enthusiasm I may have for parties and surprises of all kinds; then why should I fear whatever ridicule may be meted out to me because I happen to get a thrill out of so simple a matter as moving to the country? Any happy change brings me a little palpitation of the heart. If that constitutes being a moron, then let me with the morons stand, though no crown may be upon my forehead.

I like to stand in the middle of a disordered room, with bags and boxes all around me, and wonder if I have forgotten anything. My personal belongings are not many, but they all have a special meaning for me. I happen to like old sneakers and half-worn-out flannel trousers, and annually I find myself packing these into various receptacles, though I know full well that I shall not use some of them all summer.

One fears that the ubiquitous moths will get into one's clothing that is left behind, but Pearl knows how to pack dinner-coats away in large paper bags.

She knows how to do it so well that the little flat I left in town the other day was filled with so clean an odor that in my ignorance I thought that moths would be attracted thither, instead of fluttering away in disgust and anger. No mere man can understand the thousand little things that must be attended to before an apartment may be closed for the season. Personally, I would never think of ripping up rugs and sending them to a cleaner to be kept in storage until the fall.

Nor would I recall that windows should be locked and sealed, that the ice-man should be notified to fetch no more ice, and the newspaper man down the street told that after Monday, say, I would have no further need for his particular service. And I would never remember that chairs and couches should be encased in white linen coats until they resembled a lot of ghosts standing about a dismantled room.

* * *

But mercifully, Pearl knows about such things. She even thinks to pull down the shades so that the hot sun will not pour in during the Summer and cause the curtains to fade. I vow I would have left a light burning somewhere if it had not been for her final last look about, and her determination to save me the wasted pennies which would have been the result of such a contingency. Yes, we have to admit that women do these things better than men; and I know, too, that when I get to "Shingle Blessedness" several hours after her arrival there the house will have been properly aired, the candles, brought from the city, lighted on the table, and everything be running on noiseless wheels, just as though we had always dwelt in that little house in the woods.

To find oneself having an address like Locust Hill Road, Woodland Trail, in Connecticut fills me with a new sense of delight. One couldn't have chosen a prettier name if one had searched these many days. Yet there it is, and there it was, all unknown to me until a few brief weeks ago. And I know that the neighborhood lives up to its poetic appellation.

It is safely hidden away, yet easily accessible to all the little shops in our village; and it will be fun, having no motor, to amble down to the cigar-store of a summer's evening, to get some tobacco, and to stop in at the country post-office to inquire for one's mail, and bow to the various tradesmen who, in these parlous times, will welcome one, I think, with more than ordinary cordiality. Then, too, the movies are not so far away but that one may walk to and from the gay little palace.

I like village streets, and the seeking out of a laundress, a native tailor, and a handy plumber. I like, too, the fact that country folk bow to one, and smile, and say "Good evening," instead of passing one by, as they do in the city, without a sign of recognition. I am sure that, secreted behind the prettiest hedge and trees, there will be a local bootlegger, whose home brew is better than the stuff one gets in town; and I have a feeling that he will not be difficult to meet.

He will probably prove the gayest of my casual acquaintances, since his business, unlike many others, has not felt the stern touch of the depression. Yet if I fail to encounter him I shall be contented to drink the air as though it had been wine.

* * *

And that air is what I am looking forward to most. It is strange that within an hour of New York there could be so great a difference in the ozone we breathe. And there will be the stars and moon, seen as they were meant to be seen, in the wide realm of the heavens, and not glimpsed above the canyons of our dingy town streets.

And there will be the lure of green things growing all around me, and such a silence that at first I know I shall not sleep well, used as I have become to urban noises. Then, gradually inured to the quiet, I shall begin to resent the honk of motor cars, but few of them will pass my isolated door. If one does turn up in our lane I am sure the occupants of it will be looking for "Shingle Blessedness," because there are no other houses along my sequestered path. And after the sense of one's first detachment from the city has worn off, one begins to crave the expected or the unexpected guest.

It will be thrilling to peep from one's window and see a familiar face outside. And if, as Thoreau said, there are not enough chairs to go around there is always the floor to sit upon. If, too, there isn't quite sufficient food in the larder, there is that little lane of neat stores just beyond the borderland of our privacy where eggs and butter and bread are waiting to be toted home.

It is all amazing, and almost too good to be true; and if one gets into a natural fever of excitement, how can one be blamed?

For May is here, and the dogwood will soon be out; and to those of us who have been city pent, there isn't a richer gift that could be ours. As Robert Graves has said:

"Over the whole wood in a little while Breaks His slow smile."

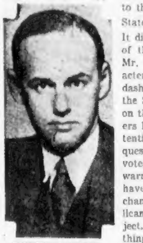
HIP FLASK SMASHED ON MENTAL WALL OF MR. VICTOR

By GILBERT SELDES

"ABOUT FIFTY WOMEN, most of them elderly," says a newspaper report, were gathered together at a Y. W. C. A. in New York recently in support of a committee for law enforcement, and to them Fred A. Victor, chairman of the State Anti-Saloon League, made a speech. It differed somewhat from most speeches of the last six or eight months because Mr. Victor is one of those granite characters against whom the waves of fact dash unavailingly. Other defenders of the Sacred Amendment have been a little on the defensive, but not Mr. Victor. Others have been vaguely aware of some intention among politicians to submit a question of private rights to private votes; a few of them have recently warned President Hoover that they would have no respect for his integrity if he changed his mind or allowed the Republican party to change its mind on the subject. But Mr. Victor is unaware of these things. Admirably and concisely, he says, "Prohibition is succeeding." Surrounded by tea, women, sandwiches, and petits fours, he also declared there was no middle ground between prohibition and a free liquor traffic, annihilating by these soft words the various Canadian and European systems of control.



GILBERT SELDES

Walls of Ivory (Solid)

It has always seemed to me that the intellectual arguments of the prohibitionists were less important than the quality of their minds. That is why I think they make a mistake in trying to be logical about their pet theory, because logic insists that you cannot say "nothing lies behind this brick wall" until you have either scaled the wall, or gone around the wall, and looked over. That wall exists in all the arguments of the prohibitionists except a very few. Mr. Victor's walls are peculiarly high. Prohibition, he says, "is morally right. Permission to sell (liquor) is morally wrong. It is a perversion of the purpose of government, which is a collective agency for waging war on ignorance, disease, poverty, crime and inhumanity." To Mr. Victor the idea that a government can exist in order to create or protect the happiness of its citizens by interfering with them to the very slightest degree, simply does not occur. It is behind the wall.

Fact and Opinion

Mr. Victor wanted the newspapers of New York to print a statement by Lillian D. Wald, the head of the Henry Street Settlement, to the effect "that only one of the sixty thousand cases treated last year by the Settlement's nurses was a case of alcoholism, and that carrying a flask by members of the young generation had ceased to be fashionable." Inasmuch as I read this statement in a newspaper, I gather that Mr. Victor has had his wish.

But why he wanted it printed, I do not know. The first half of the statement is fact, and being a fact is to be checked with a thousand other facts. It implies that alcoholism has virtually ceased to exist, which may be true, although other statistics render it unlikely. Skillfully Mr. Victor associates with this statement of fact another statement, which is decidedly an opinion. He takes the flask of the collegian and smashes it against his wall, beautifully unaware of the circumstance which makes the disappearance of the flask an unacceptable argument against prohibition. On the other side of the wall are the thirty thousand speakeasies. The custom of carrying flasks has gone out just as the custom of carrying flint and tinder has gone out. It has been rendered unnecessary by later inventions.

Monte Carlo Passes

I am very fond of the Casino at Monte Carlo, but I cannot break down over the news that it has paid no dividends this year. My reason is that the same news report ends with the sentence, "Usually it has declared a dividend varying from one hundred to two hundred per cent." As it has been in existence about sixty-five years this would suggest that the stockholders have received at least five thousand times their investment and they ought to be willing to take a cut.

Mr. Charles Schwab probably told the literal truth when he said that rich men are afraid to look at their ledgers for fear of finding out how much they have lost. These spectacular reversals of fortune are often pathetic, but they are the last argument for change in the economic system. It begins to look as if our depression is going to accomplish slowly what the revolution in Russia did with violence—that is, start us all at scratch again. We can afford to divide our pity between those who were rich and those who never knew what it was to make one hundred per cent out of money they inherited from their grandfathers.

The reason the wealth of the wealthy should be protected is that to an appalling extent the mere prosperity of the middle class and of the poor depend upon it.

Sheridan Really Made That Ride, Borglum Insists

Washington, May 5 (AP)—Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of Phil Sheridan Agallop, today said wrathful words about Joseph Hergesheimer's recent book, which terms the general's famous Civil War ride a mere walk.

"He's crazy," said the carver of mountains. "There's no particle of truth in any discount of the drama of that ride. But it's very fashionable among authors to discredit well-known events in the lives of great men."

A brilliant bronze of Sheridan done by Borglum years ago stands in a circle of fashionable Massachusetts ave. It portrays the general tearing along from Winchester to the Battle of Cedar Creek. Sheridan's son, then aide to President Roosevelt, posed for it. The general's widow looks down on that statue from her window.

By Hergesheimer's version the statue is historically wrong; the ride itself was of minor importance and executed at a walk with many halts—far different from the rallying picturesqueness of the familiar schoolroom story.

The famous Sheridan quotation: "We sleep in our tents tonight, or we sleep in hell!" also is denied by the writer.

Borglum insists that while executing the statue he had at his elbow an eyewitness of the ride, the late Col. Whitman, commissary-general to Sheridan, and went through all the data.

MRS. REYNOLDS WEDS BROKER

Blowing Rock, N. C., May 5 (AP)—Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds, former wife of Smith Reynolds, one of the heirs to the tobacco fortune built by the late R. J. Reynolds, and Frank Brandon Smith, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., a real estate broker, were married here.

The ceremony was performed in the summer home of J. F. Cannon of Concord, wealthy textile manufacturer and father of Mrs. Smith. After the wedding the couple left on a motor honeymoon.

Mrs. Smith's earlier romance with Smith Reynolds ended i nthe divorce courts of Reno two years after they were married. He established a million-dollar trust fund for her and their small daughter.

Japs Fight Swanson Ban on Submarines

Geneva, Switzerland, May 5 (AP)—United States Senator Swanson, branding the submarine as "the assassin of the sea," in today's meeting of the disarmament conference naval commission, renewed his attack on those craft as aggressive weapons of warfare.

Senator Swanson would abolish the submarine, but his thesis was opposed again today by the Japanese representative.

GERMAN TABOO ON 'U. S. PLAN'

Magdeburg, Germany, May 5 (AP)—Hundreds of German war veterans, gathered here for the second annual founders day of the steel helmet organization, today heard impressive appeals to fight for the fatherland in these times of peace as courageously as they did during the war.

Germany, one of their officers told them, must rely upon her own resources to improve her economic position.

"Neither the Russian example nor the American is a solution for us," he said. "On the contrary, in America with her vast resources and uncounted unemployed, there are indications that something is out of order with capitalistic leadership. It appears that America has not finished her work."

Franz Seldte, head of the organization, reminded his men of Bismarck's experience that "it is harder to stand and fight than to charge."

"We don't want to grab anything that doesn't belong to us," the gray-haired commander said, "but we must have back what was taken from us so unscrupulously."

'Ma' Follows in Footsteps of Son; Wins Art Fame

New York, May 5 (AP)—All this time—the past 20 years—Alice Stallknecht has been looking at things and mentally painting them, but never a brush to canvas nor a pencil to paper did she apply.

Then her husband retired as professor of Greek at Johns Hopkins and the family went to Chatham, Mass., to live on the seacoast.

"The family" included her son, Frederick White, successful portrait painter.

So there, in the midst of paint and coastal scenes and colorful fisherman life, and urged on by a son who thought it would be nice to have a mother follow in his footsteps, Alice Stallknecht rubbed pigment with brush and not only amazed her friends but bowled over herself.

Twenty-eight dazzling canvases on the walls of the Ferargil Galleries each of them close to the soil and powerful—so say the critics—in their drawing and color, attest what 20 years of "just thinking" will do.

Both she and her son are classed as "moderns." She is a native of Orange, N. J.

FLIER'S DIARY BARES STRANGE TRIANGLE

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service.)

Miami, Fla., May 5 (US)—Universal Service was able yesterday to reveal exclusively vital sections of the diary of Capt. W. N. Lancaster which are expected to play an important part in the charge against him for the murder of Haden Clarke.

Herewith is another section of the diary which further exposes the strange triangular romance and Lancaster's exotic love for Mrs. Keith-Miller, up to the time Clarke went to live in the house with the other two.

TELLS OF CRASH

The next and final installment, to be printed tomorrow, will reveal the dramatic details of the lives led by this adventurous triumvirate while they lived together.

On January 6 Lancaster's diary recounts how they had an automobile accident while Mrs. Keith-Miller was driving while intoxicated, and adds: "Spent an hour in jail."

The diary continues:

"Miami, Jan. 7—Fined $50 with a suspended sentence. American justice all wet.

"Miami, Jan. 10—Outlook for future none too bright. Cannot see daylight yet. Chubbie very depressed. She worries a lot.

"Miami, Jan. 13—Chubbie raises hell about lack of cash. Do not blame her.

SEEKS CITIZENSHIP

"Miami, January 14—Chubbie raises hell about our agreement with landlady as of the 15th. Came to conclusion that desperate situations call for desperate measures. I prepared my application for citizenship in the U. S. A.

"Miami, January 23—I start for New York on a bus to look for a job or pilot the Robin back to Miami. Wish Chubbie were with me. Damn silly to leave her.

"New York, January 26—Telephoned Chubbie and she disappoints me greatly by her failure to be her sweet self for a few moments. Did she want cheering up as things are still black. It's a dog's life.

"New York, January 28—Miss Chubbie more than anything. Cannot raise cash anywhere. Heartily sick of New York.

"New York, February 1—No word from Chubbie. God bless her.

"New York, February 2—Miss Chubbie terribly. Borrowed ten dollars.

WORRIED BY CALL

"New York, Feb. 3—Am in a cold sweat. Two telegrams from Chubbie saying I must call her—important. What can it be? This urgent call has knocked me flat. God, if anything has happened to her I shall suffer as I have never suffered in my life — — — Just talked to Chubbie. Gee! It is wonderful to hear her voice. I love her more than my very life. I think she needs me. If I did not think this I would give my life to make her happy. Am leaving New York soon as I can. Longing to hold Chubbie once again."

Lancaster then started back to Miami in the airplane Robin. The diary continued:

MEETING RELATED

"Washington, Feb. 5—Longing to go on to Chub.

"Miami, Feb. 7—No Chubbie to meet me at the field. Very disappointing. Chubbie came in later. Chubbie sweet, but fear I expect too much.

"Miami, Feb. 9—Met Haden Clarke, a writer. First impression of him very good. He is going to ghost a book for Chubbie.

"Miami, Feb. 10—Visit a movie with Chubbie, "I Killed a Man," with L. Barrymore—pretty good. Haden Clarke and I have had a heart-to-heart talk. Like him very much. Chubbie sweet.

"Miami, Feb. 11—Haden Clarke and Chubbie came with me to municipal field where I keep Robin. We hop it and view Miami and beach from air.

"Miami, Feb. 12—Haden Clarke has moved in 2321 W. 21 Terrace (where Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller lived). Chubbie running the house and doing most of the work. God bless her.

(NOTE—There are many other notations in the diary referring to daily routine, but these are not material to Lancaster's association with Clarke or his love for Mrs. Keith-Miller.)

Home Burned, Man Missing

Williamstown, Vt., May 5 (AP)—A search was under way today for P. W. Hopkins, 75, believed burned to death in a fire that destroyed his home yesterday with many antiques and two barns.

HIGH CLASS HORSE FOR POLICE FORCE SOUGHT

Here is refreshing news, indeed. The Boston police department is about to buy, for about $350, another horse, making a total of 21 on the force. A good, sound equine fundamentalist, possessing plenty of horse sense, is sought.

A rigid entrance examination is required of all applicants and Supt. Crowley, Capt. Perley E. Skillings, Sergt. Edward B. Cain and Commissioner Hultman's secretary, Bernard J. Scanlon, already have been in a huddle and selected three horses from McKinney Bros. stable, Brighton, for the final tests.

BREWERY HORSES OUT

Not any old horse will do, by any means. For obvious reasons, brewery horses are taboo. Imagine an old brewery horse leading a police parade and getting a whiff from a "speak." Why, the whole parade might stampede!

The uses to which police horses are put have long been somewhat of a mystery, but the questions they are required to answer in their examinations shed some light on the enigma. Heretofore the public has been under impression that a police horse was solely for one of four purposes:

(a) To tie to a police box.

(b) To block traffic on a busy corner.

(c) To step on Communist toes on the Common.

(d) To lead a parade. (He loves a parade!)

STIFF EXAM

This is not so. Here is a sample examination paper which all the successful applicants have passed and which some day this week will be submitted to the three eager novices now awaiting final decision at McKinney's:

1—Round the Central States. (Three points.)

2—What would you do, if, while passing a mud wallow, you suddenly discovered Capt. Harry N. Dickinson was your rider? Would you control your impulse or would you respond to Neitzsche? Or to Freud? (Twenty-seven points.)

3—Are you a victim of inhibitions? Suppressed desires? Inferiority complex? How is your B. O.? (Five points.)

4—Do you prefer (a) oats, (b) hay, (c) timothy, (d) bran mash, (e) beer mash? Check one. (Fifteen points.)

6 — (Hypothetical) You have been tied to a police box two hours, occasionally climbing the curb, when a horse fly alights in the middle of your back, out of reach of tail and nose. Describe your reaction. (Twenty-five points.)

7—Suppose Superintendent Crowley is riding you in a parade and catches sight of Padraic King, the journalist, walking, and shouts: "Want a lift, Pat?" What would be your behavior. Would you run away? (Ten points.)

8—Do you prefer a route with fruit stands to one in the secretarial district? Give reason for choice. (Five points.)

There are many more of these but it would be unfair to disclose the complete list beforehand. Enough are given to prove that the police department, buying a horse, demands real horse sense.

Theater Ticket "Scalper" Arrested

In a misguided moment Joseph Jacobs of Commonwealth ave., Brighton, who lost his job as a haberdashery clerk, put himself to work "scalping" theater tickets on Tremont st.

This was his explanation to Judge Cox in Superior Court today wheer he was up for sentence after pleading guilty to charges of reselling a ticket and selling merchandise on the street without a license. Judge Cox filed the charge.

SIX ARRESTS IN STOCK PLOT

New York, May 5 (AP)—Arrests in an alleged plot to market $2,000,000 in bogus E. I. Dupont De Nemours stock mounted to six today.

Assistant District Attorney

Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Garrison, who has been collaborating with police in a three months checkup on the alleged ring, today turned two alleged members of the gang over to police.

Police arrested four, whom they later charged with forgery, in a surprise raid yesterday on a loft at 503 West 43d st. A fifth man, John Fitzgerald, an engraver, was not placed under arrest, police said, because he had given valuable information.

The four against whom charges of forgery were filed were Willard Richman, 23, a broker, of Philadelphia; Daniel DeKoven, 31, an artist; Jack Cohen, 28, a salesman, and Anthony Pittola, 32, all of New York.

Inspector J. J. Sullivan said detectives had them under surveillance for three months before making the raid.

Anti's Self-Starter Explodes Bomb

Rochester, N. Y., May 5 (AP)—Sam Spitale, 35, went to his garage here today, umped into his automobile and stepped on the starter. The next thing he knew he was sitting dazed amid the smoking ruins of car and garage. Police said he touched off a bomb when his foot pressed the starter. He was unhurt except for minor bruises.

Togus Home Inmate Drowned in Stream

Augusta, Me., May 5 (AP)—Victor LeBlanc, 43, formerly of Suncook, N. H., an inmate of the Veterans' Administration home at Togus, was drowned in Togus stream today, after falling from a small boat he had been paddling.

LeBlanc's death was the second tragedy this week involving members of the Veterans' home. Fred Zubrysky, formerly of Bangor, was burned to death Tuesday.

VETERANS' AID HIT AS RACKET

Washington, May 5 (INS)—President Hoover was urged today to make an open issue before the country about the continued huge appropriations for veterans' relief.

He was promised the active support of "the National Economy Committee," an organization of New York city men, most of whom saw service in France, if he took steps in this way to wipe out what has become "a vast legalized racket."

Archibald B. Roosevelt, son of the late President, presented the President a letter suggesting such a campaign and a petition drawn at a New York meeting demanding elimination of at least $400,000,000 from the annual expenditures for veterans. Roosevelt laid the same papers before Vice-President Curtis.

"To use a modern but expressive slang term, vast legalized racket' has been foisted on the people, whereby one-quarter of all the revenue received from the hole nation is being expended for the benefit of less than one per cent of the people," declared Roosevelt.

Drive on for Better College Teaching

Washington, May 5 (AP)—College teaching is to be studied to see if it can be improved. A nation-wide survey has been launched by the American Association of University Professors, financed by the Carnegie Foundation and Carnegie Corp.

Prof. W. B. Munro, of California Institute of Technology, is chairman and Prof. H. L. Dodge of the University of Oklahoma, field director.

Man Killed, 1 Hurt in Copper Plant Blast

Perth Amboy, N. J., May 5 (AP)—One man was killed and another injured in an explosion at the Raritan copper works early today. Fire followed the blast.

The body of Martin [illegible], 38, of Fords, was found in the boiler room.

More Powerful than Any Gasoline

The new high-compression motors call for the best motor fuel—Esso. These high-compression motors have reduced clearances. This increases their tendency to knock and means more carbon removal jobs—unless you use Esso. The saving on the cost of one carbon job will more than pay for the extra price on a year's use of Esso.

Esso will also stop unexpected repair bills from gummed-up valves, sulphur or other corrosive elements.

As to performance, give Esso any test for quick starting, acceleration or power against any other fuel and Esso wins.

Whether you think first of your motor or first of your money, either (or any) way you look at it, it pays to use Esso.

A Little o' This 'n' That!

There was a time when the benefit season in our maudlin Manhattan confined itself to one or two months before Christmas and then came to an abrupt close until the following year. That's no longer true. No Sunday passes now without its quota of benefits, and it's gotten so that an entertainer feels slighted if he's not asked to perform at one of them at least once a week. Not that he gets paid—he's lucky if he gets cab fare—but appearing at benefits these nights is indicative of his drawing power. The day has passed when the sponsors were elated to get anybody who could sing a range of from two to three notes, or do a handspring, or tell a funny story. Now, they want only the top-notch talent—and you'd be surprised at the number of worthwhile entertainers who apply—even beg for a chance to go on—and are rejected.

Of the benefits, Sunday night, I attended the National Vaudeville Artists' affair at the Metropolitan Opera House. Tickets sold for as high as $25 each and higher—nevertheless the place was jammed to the fifth balcony. People don't turn out for these benefits because the cause appeals to them—they go because they know they're going to get about $100 entertainment for every dollar they spend. To give you an idea—the N. Y. A. program offered this talent (I can only name part, but it'll give you an idea): Beniamino Gigli, operatic star, Lou Holtz, Jack Benny, Sophie Tucker, Lillian Roth, Leo Carrillo, the Pat Rooneys, the Herman Timbergs, Borrah Minnevitch, [illegible] Seeley, Guy Lombardo's orchestra, Fred Waring's orchestra, the Mills Brothers, Buddy Rogers, Mitzi Green, Roscoe Ails, [illegible], Graham McNamee, Ruth Etting, Cab Calloway, Jeanne Aubert, Kate Smith—what's the use of going on? I could name 20 to 30 more. There they waited in the wings, hour after hour, until their turn to go on arrived—all for sweet charity's sake. It's not a new phase on Broadway, this benefit business—and it's very much worthwhile—but the ironic note to me is that one of the principals in Sunday night's show—and I've omitted his name in the lineup I've given—has worked exactly four full weeks in a year, is broke, in debt and in danger of being dispossessed from his hotel suite. Yet he went on, being the gayest of the lot, and only a few of us noticed, I presume, that his shoes were worn at the heels and that the cuffs of his trousers were a bit frayed.

Observation!

Alan Hynd, the writer of detective and mystery yarns, sends me a letter in which he expresses his concern because in the past two years what he considers a rather unusual number of world figures, leaders in their respective lines, have passed away. Thus he points out the stage has lost David Belasco and Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske; the field of invention, Thomas A. Edison; statesmanship, Dwight W. Morrow; football, Knute Rockne; photoplay, George Eastman; detective fiction, Edgar Wallace; motion pictures, Lon Chaney and F. W. Murnau; finance and philanthropy, Nathan Straus, Julius Rosenwald; industry, Ivar Kreuger; militarism, Marshals Foch and Joffre; judiciary, William Howard Taft; politics, Chancellor Bruening; crime detection, William J. Burns.

Unfortunately, Mr. Hynd merely submits the list without a supplementary comment advancing what he may consider the reason for the deaths of these people of prominence. As a matter of fact, no one can explain it—we're born and we die—but it's a safe bet to assume that for every one of the leaders mentioned above, at least two to three babes came into the world who will be as important, if not more important factors in the world's activities.

Just Like a Woman!

I've learned the secret of one popular gal's success in keeping her boy-friend interested—and jealous. He noticed that every time she entered a night club or a speakeasy, or a theater, man after man would bow to her in smiling recognition—and it burned him up. He would pout, "You certainly seem to know a lot of men for a girl who swears she's true to me. I don't like it." The lass would merely shrug her pretty shoulders, smile enigmatically, and say nothing. You can imagine how much that has annoyed him—and held him. Well, perhaps this will make him feel better. The secret of the girl's popularity is simply this. As soon as she enters a place, she stares boldly at the best looking men around, smiles a bit doubtfully and then walks on. Naturally, if a pretty girl smiles at you you're going to stare back, if you have to get out of your seat to do it, and, of course, you're going to smile in recognition. A simple, but effective trick, and I offer it to the women of my public, gratuitously.

O Hum!

An idea of why every other person in Hollywood is goofy—no matter how well-balanced he may be mentally when he first arrives in the picture capital. Al Boasberg, the gagster, has a favorite yarn to indicate why sanitariums do a flourishing business out on the Coast. A chap approached him with an idea for a story. He gushed his enthusiasm. "Look," he spluttered, "Picture this! A beautiful girl. Great ambitions. She wants to be an actress—like the sensation of the moment, a Minerva Goodies. She finally summons up courage and visits Minerva in her dressing room. She confides her ambitions but Minerva seems stunned. Finally she takes the girl into her arms, hugs her and weeps bitterly. She tells her she's her own daughter—whom she gave away when she was a baby, etc., etc., etc." Boasberg rushed to Irving Thalberg. "Irving," he shouted, "I've just heard a pip. The part'll fit Norma Shearer like a glove. You've been waiting for something like this for years." Thalberg, absorbing Boasberg's enthusiasm, urged him to bring the fellow over. He did. "Tell me the story in your own words," encouraged Thalberg as the chap sat down. "Mr. Thalberg," raved the writer, "Picture this. There's an airplane in N' Yawk, see—ready to take off for the Coast. At the same time, there's a plane in Frisco ready to take off for N' Yawk. You see, these two pilots are going to race each other for a time record. Well, they're rivals, too, for a girl who lives in Chicago. So they start off and they're about to pass each other over Chicago when the Frisco lad gets burned up at the idea that this other guy is making a play for his girl, so what does he do but run his plane right into the other guy's and they smash up and drop and——." But at this point, Thalberg threw the writer out of the office and didn't speak to Boasberg for two weeks.

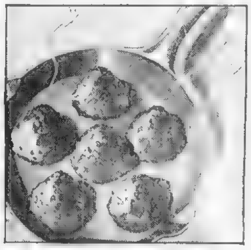
AND HERE'S HOW YOU MAKE LEFT-OVERS REALLY TASTY



• First day •

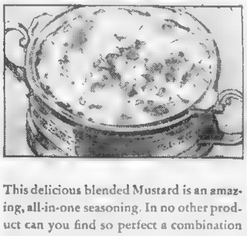
You serve the most delicious pot roast you've ever tasted. Coat the pot roast thickly with Gulden's Mustard and then sear it in very hot fat in which an onion has been lightly browned. Cook it as usual with the desired vegetables. Add three teaspoons Gulden's to the gravy just before serving.

• Second day •

Now you start to show your family what a clever cook you are. Chop fine 2 cups of the cold meat. Sauté 2 tablespoons minced green pepper and 1 chopped onion. Mix with meat and 2 teaspoons Gulden's. Beat 1 egg lightly and add to meat. Mold in cakes, roll in crumbs or flour and brown in butter.

That difficult • third day •

There are always difficult tag ends—but here's how you can make the last of the pot roast left-overs into a party meal. Grind 1 cup cold meat with ⅛ of an onion. Add 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 teaspoons Gulden's and 1 cup mashed potatoes (hot or reheated). Beat in 2 egg yolks and ⅔ cup milk. Lastly, fold in 2 stiffly beaten whites and bake 20 to 30 minutes in moderate oven.



● That's the way Gulden's Prepared Mustard makes your 1932 food allowance go twice as far. In the most inexpensive meats there's a wonderful natural flavor that only Gulden's can bring out. BOSTON CHAMPIONS OPEN NEW POLICE TARGET RANGE

Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman, Supt. Michael H. Crowley with the commissioner's secretary Bernard F. Scanlon, Drill master Louis Lutz and Timothy A. J. Hayes, director of the department's signal service, participated today in the formal opening of the Boston police department's new revolver and machine gun range, finest of its kind in America, on the Welch estate, off Wedgmere rd., West Roxbury. One of their guests was Col. John J. Dooley, instructor in revolver shooting in the New York Department of Corrections and former U. S. Olympic rifle team member. Boston department's revolver team, national indoor champions and thrice N. E. champions, made high scores with Patrolman William Desmond, crack shot of the department, star of the day, winning warm praise from Col. Dooley. (Staff photo.)

GUNS ROAR AT POLICE RANGE

The new Boston police target range on the Welch estate off Wedgemere rd., West Roxbury, finest police range in the country, was formally opened today in the presence of Police Commissioner Hultman, Supt. Crowley and other officials.

Built by members of the police department revolver team, national indoor champions and three-time winners of the New England indoor championship, the range has 16 targets as well as moving figures including the running figure of a man for the officers to try out their aim.

At the opening session more than a dozen officers tried their hands at bull target shooting, bobber target shooting, balloon shooting and the running man, all with revolvers, and then used a machine gun on the targets, which are set against a ledge as a protection against bullets going astray.

Patrolman William Desmond, crack shot of the department, led as usual in the scoring and was complimented by Col. John J. Dooley, instructor in revolver shooting in the New York Department of Corrections and former United States Olympic rifle team member.

Others present and taking part in the opening shoot included Capt. Louis Lutz, department drill master, Bernard F. Scanlon, secretary to Commissioner Hultman, and Timothy A. J. Hayes, director of the police signal service.

Do you inhale?

"Why bring that up?" –the cigarette trade asks!

FOR years there has been generally a striking avoidance of the word "inhale" in cigarette advertising. Why? Goodness only knows! For everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly! Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

That's why it's all-important to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question—for it has solved the problem! It gives you the protection you want . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

"Fifty million smokers can't be wrong!" So whether you inhale knowingly or unknowingly—safeguard your delicate membranes!

PULITZER TRUSTEES TEAR AWAY LAST RESTRICTION THAT HINDERED CHOICE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

PROF. ROGERS

The Pulitzer Prize awards for drama and the novel illustrate once again how little the "dead hand" can control bequests and how much wiser it is to trust to the living to manage and administer properties according to the needs of the living and the conditions of the day. The country is full of trust funds which are either useless today or are being administrated in ways which the benefactors did not desire or would, even, reprehend

The original phrasing of the award for the novel declared that the prize should be given to that work of fiction "best presenting the idealistic atmosphere of American life." Under that phrasing the great success of the year 1920, "Main Street," lost to a novel of moderate pretensions, "The Age of Innocence" by Edith Wharton. In this case, it is said, the trustees overruled the judges. That is probably the reason why a few years later Sinclair Lewis refused to accept the award for "Arrowsmith."

So "Idealistic" Is Dropped

Novels showing American life in an idealistic way are not uncommon, but, curiously enough, they are not usually good literature. They tend to run along the level of the Pollyanna books and the Harold Bell Wright books, etc. So a year ago the trustees decided to drop the word "ideal" or "idealistic" out of the award and to ask merely for a novel best representing the whole of American life. Therefore, the prize of this year goes to a novel about a Chinese farmer. A few years ago a prize was given to a story about Peru in the 18th century. Of course, South America is America!

The committee, by the way, changed its ruling from "ideal" to "whole" the year after the prize had been given to "Scarlet Sister Mary," a story about a colored lady who loved not wisely but much too well. Of course she repented at the end and joined the church. Perhaps that is what Pulitzer meant by idealistic. I do not know.

Idealistic means, to most people, pleasant and optimistic. A novel or a play which shows life as essentially happy, a purposeful and hopeful process, essentially good in its nature and leading to better, is, to them, idealistic. To a minority "idealistic" means a picture of a good world ruined by human greed and selfishness, but with the hope fo its regeneration, even if by violence. "The Jungle" of Upton Sinclair and other books of the sort are genuinely idealistic, from that point of view. And I suspect that was the point of view of the old crusader, Pulitzer.

The same difficulty has arisen in the drama award. The citation at present reads: "For the original American play which shall best represent the educational value and power of the American stage."

Few Comedies Ever Win

Curiously enough, except for the first award, Jesse Lynch Williams' "Why Marry?" in 1918, the present award is the only one ever given to comedy. Every other play on the list is either out and out tragedy or, like "Icebound" and "Craig's Wife" and "Street Scene," it is acid and unhappy. Only one piece has exhibited any quality of the poetic imagination, "The Green Pastures."

I forgot whether there was anything in the original drama requirement about an idealism. If there was, the requirement was licked from the start. There was that dreadful year when there were only three pieces to choose from, "Desire Under the Elms," which a humorist called "the play about the illegitimate baby in the garbage can," "What Price Glory," that lewd and profane picture about the Marines in France, and "They Knew What They Wanted," a story of most curious domestic and marital entanglements on a California truck farm, the sort of thing that arouses howls of laughter in farce but which when treated soberly and honestly as an every day occurrence seems, somehow, very shocking. The trustees chos the last. People questioned the educational value and power of the piece.

People have also questioned the educational value and power of O'Neill's three tragedies that have won prizes. But in the main those have caused less resentment than many of the others. Most people, I suppose, took it for granted that "Mourning Becomes Electra" would win this year. But the trustees evidently felt that three awards were enough, for a little time at least, since the prizes were intended to encourage American genius. At present O'Neill needs little or no encouragment.

What the trustees did this year they could just as well have done last year. Instead of giving the prize to that essentially feeble, undramatic, but "literary" play about the late Emily Dickinson, "Alison's House," they might well have given it to that superb piece of satiric spoofing "Once In A Lifetime," that delicious razz upon the advent of the "talkies" in Hollywood. There would have been no injustice done, because Mr. Kaufman is the collaborator in that as in this. But there is no doubt that "Of Thee I Sing" roused greater popular and critical acclaim, musical show though it be, than the older play.

Sky's the Limit Now

The reward is significant because by it the prize committee for the drama has freed itself, as the prize committee for the novel freed itself a few years ago. Henceforth the sky is the limit. Anything will go, if it is good enough. There is no reason why a tragedy is better than a farce, per se. It is only more literary. "Of Thee I Sing," once its libretto is printed and distributed, as it will have to be now, ought to prove a genuinely "educational" and "powerful" influence. It is particularly fortunate that the award came in a presidential year, as, no doubt, the trustees slyly recognise.

But who will reap the benefit? Certainly neither the Republicans nor the Democrats, obverse and reverse of the same medal. If the Socialists could afford to distribute huge printings of the play, they might profit. There are historical instances of lampoons and burlesques having affected political events. If the deadly parallels of "Of Thee I Sing" make the two-old parties get busy strengthening their platforms, Mr. Pulitzer would not have died in vain.

But, to come back to literature for a moment, the chief service done by this award is to free future judges from any "dead hand ruling" which depends on conditions contrary to fact. Henceforth we may expect that a novel need only be a good novel, that a play need only be a good play, in the broadest sense of the word, not "idealistic" or "educational." The only requisite will be that they be well written by Americans.

GIRLS AT B. U. DENY THEY'RE "IN A FOG"

Don't Need "Sophistication for Defense," They Tell Dr. McGillicuddy

"Is the modern college girl sophisticated?"

Dr. Helen I. McGillicuddy, lecturer on social problems, thinks she is, but here's the catch—she is "in a fog."

Many college girls just can't agree with the doctor though, and have taken this opportunity to raise their voices in protest.

IGNORANT OF LIFE

"The modern college girl does not know what life is all about, although she pretends to, and for that reason she makes sophistication a defense against reality. The new freedom, an outgrowth of the World War, has created new standards to which these girls are struggling to conform," Dr. McGillicuddy explained while addressing Boston University co-eds yesterday.

Mary Dobkin, pretty 18-year-old B. U. freshman who insists that she is modern, answers Dr. McGillicuddy by saying the so-called sophistication is just "the bunk."

"The college girls of today know that they have to be natural in order to get along, and this so-called sophistication is the bunk. The co-ed of today, like every other girl, knows what it's all about, you can well rest assured," Miss Dobkin said.

Esther Blender, also an 18-year-old co-ed at the university, said:

"College girls of today have freedom of speech, dress, thought and action and therefore there is no need of any veil of sophistication. We are all out of a fog in this generation and we know what's what."

Dr. McGillicuddy told the co-eds that "love is physical, spiritual and psychological."

"One trouble with the young college girl is that they mistake the physical for the real thing. The big danger comes from mistaking the kick that comes from the physical element for love," the doctor claimed.

WARNS OF PROMISCUITY

"No boy will want to neck and pet a girl whom he respects. He wants to protect her. Most boys are vain and do not want a girl who has been promiscuous. Girls should put a high price upon themselves."

Both co-eds readily agreed with the doctor on this statement except that the necking and petting angle was not explicit enough.

"We consider her statement very sensible but it all depends on what her opinion of necking and petting is," the two girls maintained.

Dr. McGillicuddy has had much experience with girls in her field of work and her own daughter is a sophomore at Radcliffe.

But the co-eds claim that as far as they are concerned, "that doesn't cut any ice."

With women's clubs co-operating and all members lending their efforts, Boston's job finding campaign is meeting with genuine success by officials behind the campaign said today.

Nearly 100 members of the Cecilian Guild are aiding in the campaign. Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Jr., daughter-in-law of the former mayor and president of the guild, announced today, and many are taking turns taking orders for those who wish jobs done at the office of the Boston Evening American.

EVERY BABY A PRIZEWINNER

Gurgling youngsters held the spotlight at Boston University's School of Theology, at the annual baby show sponsored by the Edith Buell Club, at the college building, 72 Mt. Vernon st.

Children ranging from 6 months to 5 years participated, and all received prizes.

The hit of the show was forced to send his regrets because of an enforced absence due to a slight discrepancy in age. He was the yet unnamed baby of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kendall of Gloucester, and yesterday was his fifth day on this earth. He sent his picture, taken when he was 36 hours old, however, and was given the prize, in absentia, for being the youngest baby at the show.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Roland M. Martin of New Bedford, Sherwood and Barbara Jean, received prizes, Sherwood for his smile and wee Barbara Jean for being the prettiest baby. Mr. and Mrs. John Collier presented their daughter, Constance, and she was given the prize for having the brightest eyes, while her brother, Reginald, five, was the oldest baby in the show.

ONE ARREST IN SOUTH END RACE OUTBREAK

Move for Warrant for Perelli Is Put Over Because of the Negro Girl's Condition

One warrant was granted today in municipal court out of the near race riots last night in the South End following an alleged insult to two Negresses by a Boston gangster.

Four persons were treated in City Hospital for injuries as a result of the disturbance, these including Mrs. Marjorie Trent, 22, of Harkins st., Roxbury, over whom the battles started when she was allegedly kicked by Guy "Morgan" Perelli.

TEETH KNOCKED OUT

The warrant, charging assault, was issued by Judge Duff against William E. Benders, 33, Mrs. Trent's brother. Benders is alleged to have punched James Gardekes of Tremont st. and to have knocked out three of Gardekes' teeth at Tremont st. and Massachusetts ave.

Holding the teeth in his hand, Gardekes testified that he was an innocent bystander and had no idea why Benders ran up to him and began punching his face.

By agreement between counsel for Perelli and council for Mrs. Trent, the move for a warrant against Perelli was put over until Tuesday, as Perelli is under treatment for several knife slashes and Mrs. Trent is in a serious condition in City Hospital.

EXTRA POLICE OUT

Action was similarly deferred in the cases of Irving Gomes of Braddock pk., South End, and Joachim Burgo of Chelsea st., East Boston, Negroes, arrested with Benders.

Meanwhile extra police were patrolling the district at Tremont st. and Massachusetts ave. today following warnings that white gangsters intended invading the South End to retaliate against the Negroes for the "carving" of Perelli.

FIRE SWEEPS 3 EVERETT BARNS

Fanned by a northwest wind today, fire swept three large barns on the Mary Manning farm, Fuller st., Everett, and threatened the abandoned Everett Contagious Hospital building and several nearby houses.

Thomas Manning, at work on the farm, noticed smoke coming from a barn directly behind the homestead. He rescued a horse, then gave the alarm.

Before fire apparatus arrived flames had caught the three barns. A second alarm called aid from Revere and Chelsea.

The fire is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in the hay. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

THE REAL STORY OF Martin Lomasney LAMPLIGHTER TO "CZAR"

CHAPTER XVI

By BERT FORD

(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American.)

Martin Lomasney trounced George W. Anderson hardest in the debate over the Anti-Trading Amendment in the Constitutional Convention in 1917 when the country was plunged in war.

The draft submitted by Anderson, chairman of the committee read

"The General Court may authorize the Commonwealth to take by purchase, or otherwise, foodstuff, fuel, ice, and other necessaries of life and to sell the same to the inhabitants thereof or to any county, city, town or other municipal corporation therein; and may authorize municipalities to buy and to sell to their inhabitants, such necessaries of life, and to harvest and manufacture ice. The General Court may authorize the establishment, maintenance and operation by the Commonwealth, cities and towns of markets, docks, fuel and coal yards elevator warehouses, canneries, slaughter houses and other like means for producing, selling and distributing the necessaries of life."

Anderson and his colleagues went home confident that this amendment would be adopted, but Lomasney proved a thorn in their side. He considered the Anderson proposal too drastic, although he believed in the general purpose of the measure.

On the following day, October 2 Lomasney offered a substitute which read

"The maintenance, at reasonable rates, of a sufficient supply of food and other common necessaries of life, and of shelter, during the time of war, emergency and distress, is a public function, and it shall be the duty of the Commonwealth and of the cities and towns therein, to take and to provide the same for their inhabitants in such manner as the Legislature shall determine."

Slur at Martin

But He Wins Out by Vote of 142 to 85

Anderson was flabbergasted by Lomasney's audacity in daring to challenge the committee amendment. The spirited verbal encounter in which Anderson scoffed at "non-college man like Lomasney" daring to usurp the judgment of "professional minds," and Martin's retort about "strutting turkey cock" and "swell-head" followed.

Lomasney's substitute amendment was carried by a vote of 142 to 85. It was the most sensational development of the constitutional convention

Further mention of the prominent role played by Lomasney in the constitutional convention is made in the state history of the proceedings written by the late Raymond L. Bridgman, a keen political observer, who had reported legislative matters on Beacon Hill for more than 50 years.

"Martin M. Lomasney of Boston," wrote Bridgman, who died a few years ago, "was conspicuously the most intense personal force in the convention. He was a leader, a hard hitter, a fair fighter, generous, sympathetic respected by all who came close enough to feel the strength of his personal qualities. He earned honorable mention for his convention service, not only for what he was and did, but also because of the many years of hard knocks he has had at the hands of critics and enemies.

Never Retreats

Firm Stand of Mahatma Finally Brings Victory

"There was a notable incident in the convention. George W. Anderson of Brookline, fresh in the unexpected honor of being selected for the interstate commerce commission, already United States district attorney and chairman of the convention committee of public affairs presumed upon the prestige of the committee and of himself to make a point against Mr. Lomasney, who was author of a pending amendment to the public trading amendment. It was a subject full of intricacy and of high importance.

"Numerous amendments were pending, including one of Mr. Anderson himself. But he and the committee agreed that the amendment of Mr. Clapp of Lexington was nearest the desired form and they supported it. But Mr. Lomasney insisted upon his.

"Mr. Anderson reflected sharply upon the idea that an unlearned member, like Mr. Lomasney, could have an inspiration better than the result of the professionally trained minds which had combined their erudition upon the problem.

"He was quite intolerant of Mr. Lomasney and put his attitude in words which stung Mr. Lomasney to protest later and to say that he was not the member who was strutting about the floor like a turkey cock. During the debate, some of the most conservative members complimented Mr. Lomasney on the happy inspiration which seemed to have solved the problem. He had the sympathy of the members, probably partly in consequence of Anderson's attack, but more on the real merit of his proposition.

"Hence it was that when the vote came he got 142 yeas to 85 nays and thus got his magnificent triumph over his critic. Anderson is a Williams graduate and a man of distinction, but Lomasney bested him in this encounter."

THERE WAS something familiar about that top landing with its skylight showing a moonlit sky, its two [illegible] orange trees in [illegible] side of the [illegible].

Judith wondered [illegible] she been here before?

The door opened and the mystery was explained. [illegible] Hayasha, the [illegible] Japanese servant.

WAVE OF ANGER

Was it her fancy or was a contemptuous sarcasm on the [illegible]-eyed face of the Oriental servant? Did pretty ladies often call with billets-doux?

She'd bet none of them sneaked up the back staircase as she had!

She felt a wave of anger against Genevieve.

She would not use those wretched back stairs any more. She would go down by the elevator.

Annoyed at having been made a tool, she pressed the [illegible] button.

"Of course I'm playing square with him! Why, I'm perfectly crazy about Barry!" Loranda answered quickly. She hesitated. "If you only knew it, it's on Barry's behalf I've run up here this evening."

The Marry-Go-Round; 'Waiting'

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN THESE DAYS the best-known paint remover is a kiss.

* * *

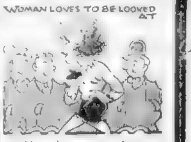
Time and tide wait for no man; whether a woman is tied or untied she is always waiting for some man—just as long as he chooses to keep her waiting.

* * *

Trying to mix marriage and [illegible] leads to more [illegible] than trying to mix [illegible] and high-powered motor cars.

* * *

All you need to remember, in order to be popular in this world is that a woman loves to be LOOKED at and a man loves to be LISTENED to.



WOMAN LOVES TO BE LOOKED AT

* * *

A man used to get impatient with the [illegible] woman [illegible]. Now he gets hurt [illegible] woman lets [illegible] make his own [illegible] own toast and [illegible].

* * *

A modern man's love-life is made up mostly of pursuing a woman—and then trying to get past her falling in love—and then trying to crawl out of it, wondering if he dare kiss a girl and then wondering when he dare STOP.

* * *

When a woman starts out to be her own worst enemy, she will usually find plenty of men ready to help her.

"I'M MY OWN WORST ENEMY"

* * *

The most dangerous moment of a woman's life is that in which she realizes that she is not going to get the man she wants—and is tempted to marry the first man who comes along, just as a consolation prize.

* * *

A super-optimist is a woman who puts a special delivery stamp on a letter—and then hands it to a man to mail.

She Was Life of the Party

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 19, have wavy red hair and am inclined to be stout. I know how to wear my clothes and they're becoming. I am full of fun and am always the life of the party. But when the party is over and we go home all the other girls have escorts and no one asks to see me home. Do you think it's my stoutness that detracts from my prospects?

WONDERING.

Dear Wondering: "The life of the party," judging from letters which come to this column, often suffers a fate similar to the one you describe. People expect them to be merrymakers and let it go at that. Don't work so hard to be entertaining; also it might be well to change your crowd and start in with a new role. Too strenuous dieting I would not advise.

Wrong Food or Clothing May Give You the Hives

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MANY OF my readers have requested information about "urticaria," which is the medical name for "hives." Many call it nettle-rash."

Dr. Copeland

In this condition there is a rash, or an eruption of the skin, that consists of numerous small red spots. These enlarge and may become as big as a 50-cent piece. Fortunately the rash usually lasts only for a few hours, but in severe cases it may be prolonged for a few days. The swellings disappear, but often reappear at definite times of the day. Any part of the skin may become affected. It is found in adults, but is more common in childhood than in later life.

For many years the cause of hives was not recognized. Now it is believed to be due to a sensitivity to certain substances. These substances are usually present in certain foods, but may be found in clothes, homes and materials used in various occupations.

I have known many persons who were fond of sea food, but unfortunately, whenever they partook of this tempting food they "broke out" in a rash and suffered for many hours.

Sensitivity to clothes as a cause of hives is illustrated by the following story. A young woman suffered from hives and her attacks always occurred on Sundays. Though every effort was made to determine to what food she was sensitive, no relief was found. It was finally noted that on Sundays she wore a certain silk blouse and that her sensitivity to silk was the cause of the hives. When the silk garment was discarded her hives were cured.

In acute cases, where the itching and inflammation is very severe, relief can be obtained by applying a solution of hyposulphate of soda. Dissolve a tablespoonful in half a glass of water and apply to the inflamed skin. Where the rash involves the whole body, place a half pound of hyposulphite in a tub half full of water and bathe in that. These baths may be taken twice a day for a duration of 20 minutes.

Save Money With These Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

FIFTEEN CENTS apiece to serve two liberally or about eight cents apiece to serve four more moderately, with a main dish of adequate protein value (if you eat enough of it) should interest many of us in these days of careful planning. And I hope you'll clip these today for your budget book. The ingredients suggested in these recipes may be purchased in most localities, for from 30 to 35 cents.

The sizes of the portions suggested for four might not be sufficient for unusually hungry people, unless there were enough other things with which to "fill up." And, of course, if this is done, there is always danger of unbalancing the meal with quick carbohydrate rather than needed protein value.

Here they are:

BAKED STUFFED PEPPERS

Make a white sauce of 1½ tbsps. butter, 1 tbsp. flour and [illegible] cup milk and add few drops of lemon juice. Add 1 cup of flaked fish. Cut stem ends off four green peppers, remove seeds and fill with fish mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until brown on top and the peppers tender. Serves 2 liberally and 4 moderately.

VIENNESE NOODLES

Boil 4 ounces of egg noodles (2-3 pkg.) in salted water, drain. Make a white sauce of 2 tbsps. butter, 2 tbsps. flour, 1 1-3 cups milk and salt and pepper to taste. Cut one 4-oz. can Vienna sausages in half-inch pieces and add. Put the noodles on the plates and pour sauce over. Serves four.

BAKED EGGS EN CASSEROLE

Saute one small diced onion in 4 tbsps. butter for a few minutes, then add 3 tbsps. flour and stir smooth. Add 1 tsp. salt and enough pepper and paprika to season. Have 4 eggs hard cooked. Peel and cut in halves. Put a little of the sauce in each of 4 individual baking dishes, lay 2 half eggs in each and cover with the remaining sauce. Mix ¼ cup crumbs and 3 tbsps. grated cheese and sprinkle over the top. Bake until brown. Serves four.

Hints From the Beauty Box

DO YOU know that the deep, forcible chest movements necessary for laughter makes for a more complete oxygenation of the blood? Yes, mam! Good laughters don't have blue noses or cold feet, their blood streams gallop and keep them warm. Laughter is a sedative for nerve strain, stirs the brain to activity. Somebody ought to tell the old four-faced wet blankets all about it. They might reform and look sweeter.

Daily True Story

At Love's Call

WHEN CHARLEY ECKHART, premier fiddler and barn dance virtuoso of Snohola Township, drew my number as the winner of the fiddle he was raffling he little thought his action would be the means of shaping my future career.

As soon as the home talent began to compliment me I felt that I was destined to set the Hudson Valley afire, and so, with my fiddle and my bow, and with what I thought was the necessary ignition in my fingers I set out for the great town along its banks.

On my way to and from my work I chanced to meet a girl who was destined to play a more important part in my life than my fiddle or my bow. She was a rare Irish beauty, with rose tinted cheeks and roguish eyes with golden hair and a sun-lit smile. With—well, the first night I met her I played all the Irish melodies I knew and they never sounded so sweet.

When she spoke, and I heard the sound of her voice, I thought how strangely it seemed to me to sound like the voice of my violin. And when, as if divining my thoughts, she asked, "Are you the young man who plays the violin so wonderfully?" I knew then that she was the girl of my melodies.

Before I could stammer an answer, and as if she wished to answer the question herself, she continued: "Won't you come up and play for mother and me? You see, mother is not in the best of health."

DELIGHTED MOTHER

After I played all the melodies I knew, the comment of the delighted mother was that Irish melodies like these always take her back to the "Old Sod" where she used to pick the "turf."

When I told her the story of how I had won the violin for ten cents, and how its mysterious mellowness had always urged me to play it, it recalled to her mind the story of a valuable Stradivarius that had been purchased for a song and later proved to be worth thousands of dollars.

"Wouldn't it be romantic, mother, if this violin proved to be a Strad?" the girl of my melodies said, as she gently lifted the instrument, and screened her eyes to peep into it.

I hesitated for a moment because the word "romantic" didn't seem to me to be the word to be used there, and I wondered if she had selected it for any other reason. But for every reason that I know of, I was filled with a strange happiness just because she did select that particular word.

That this strange happiness would soon reach the heights of exquisite bliss was the next thrill that awaited me, when her voice became more soft, and even more mellow, when she said: "It is a Strad, Mother. Look! Here on the label it reads—ANTONIS STRADIVARIOUS—1717!"

"But, my dear," her mother protested, "a label doesn't make a violin genuine."

"Then why should the label be there?" she asked with unaffected disappointment. "It has that soft mellow tone—that irresistible tone."

"Yes, my dear," the mother agreed. "The tone is wonderfully sweet." Then turning to me, she asked, "Why don't you take your violin to an expert?"

WON'T SELL VIOLIN

"Indeed," I replied with a feeling of satisfaction, "I have already done that."

"And what was the result?" The girl of my melodies asked.

"They told me I was the proud possessor of a genuine Stradivarius."

"I knew it. I knew it! Oh mother, it's just too wonderful!" she cried with unrestrained enthusiasm.

"The expert that examined my violin," I continued, "told me he wanted to add it to his collection. And his most recent offer was $50,000."

"Fifty thousand dollars!" her mother repeated. "That's a small fortune; surely you'll sell?"

"I think not," I replied.

"But you don't expect to get more, do you?"

"I would not sell even for twice that amount."

"And why not?" she asked quickly.

"Because, mother," I replied, "all the money in the world could never awaken the thing that the voice of my violin has awakened within me. And to part with it now would still the soul that has found its echo in the voice of the most wonderful girl in the world—the voice of the girl of my melodies."

At I.O.O.F. Assembly With the Candid Camera

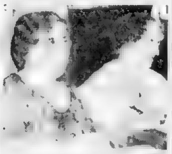
By CANDID CAMERA

Yesterday was a big day for the Rebekah Assembly of the I. O. O. F. at the Hotel Bradford. More than 1200 delegates were present. They nominated officers and talked over business. I arrived after the nomination. The officers will be elected later.

Above is Mrs. Anna M. Basley of Waltham, selling a delegate's badge to Mrs. Bertha A. Jones of Springfield. The small cost for the badges goes to the club's treasury.

Mrs. Ruth Isbister of Revere was taking a subscription for the Rebekahs' official organ when I happened along. The subscriber was Mrs. Klary L. Connors of Franklin.

They also held a bazaar at the meeting. Mrs. Ruth Davis, a Rebekah member, was a "salesgirl." She had a doll for some lucky customer. They use the money from the sales for various funds.



And, of course, the members have to show their credentials before they are allowed to enter. That was taken care of by Mrs. Elizabeth Nowell of Arlington and Mrs. Anna Purdy of Boston, members of the credential committee. You have to show them. (Staff Photos.)

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1932 C. M. Co.

Densten Admits Housekeeper Went to Coast With Him

The Densten alimony hearing resumed in Salem court today with verbal pictures of wealth, $[illegible] rose-tinted bathrooms with dancing figures and a housekeeper who broke up a home.

John J. Densten, Peabody and Philadelphia hair and felt manufacturer, is seeking a modification of the decree under which he is now obliged to pay $7500 a year for the support of his wife and two daughters who live in Beacon st., Brookline.

Densten was on the witness stand under cross examination by James Sullivan, Mrs. Elizabeth Densten's lawyer, and twice in answers to questions made about women he became flustered and contradicted himself.

CHANGES HIS ANSWER.

The first time was when after he had admitted that the only other occupant of his $19,000 Philadelphia home was his housekeeper, Miss Mary Kamp, Densten was asked if she had not accompanied him on a trip to Catalina Island, California.

"No," he said.

"What?" Sullivan exclaimed, loudly.

"Yes," said Densten.

And the other time was when he admitted buying $60,000 worth of stock in the last three years and Sullivan inquired whether he had bought it "through the influence of a woman."

"No," he replied.

Sullivan started across the court room to where Mrs. Densten was sitting.

ROSE-TINTED BATHROOM

"Yes," said Densten, "a Mrs. Short." He said she was a widow, now living in Philadelphia, whom he had known 25 years.

The rose-tinted bathroom with the painted dancing figures he said he had installed for the use of his daughters, Jacqueline and Evelyn 21, when they visited him. He admitted they had spent only [illegible] week in his home last year.

Mrs. Densten testified for [illegible] of her daughters to their father [illegible] her with disgust because they were obliged to live in the same house with the woman who caused the Densten home to be broken up in 192[illegible].

Densten had a net income of $75,000 in 1928-29, but since then has made only $4[illegible],000, it was brought out, although his company has a surplus of $[illegible]. He had four lawyers present at the hearing today.

Sullivan in his closing argument said Densten was always talking about what he planned to do for his daughter. "I have made a circuit of the country and have found that business at present doesn't show any great improvement anywhere," Mr. Burrill told the mayor.

"The textile industry, the cotton industry, all businesses, are poor, but as I talked to business men they all seemed to feel that, fundamentally, business is trying to improve and they seemed optimistic.

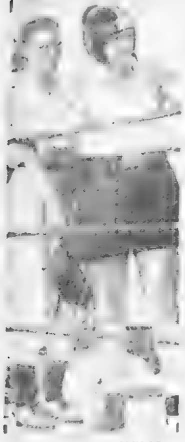
With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Lean Tony at the Mike. He Conditions Sharkey. New Orle'ns, for Suah! ↕ Pitches Camp, Sunday. Jack Ready for Grind. He Visits Lion Tamer.

Tune in Folks! Signor Palazola Broadcasts!

"Well [illegible] long about [illegible] I will be goin home to New Orleans [illegible] in [illegible] years," remarked Tony Palazola, the [illegible] trainer who has pointed Jack Sharkey [illegible] battles since the Garrulous Gob jumped into the [illegible] beating Harry Wills, and will condition Jack for his coming [illegible] with Schmeling. "Yeah, I'm suah of getting home to New Orleans this time," continued Tony with his mixture of soft Southern accent and rolling New York r's, as he brushed an imaginary speck off his sartorially perfect make-up. "You see three years ago," he explained, "I promised myself I wouldn't go back to New Orleans until Jack Sharkey won the world's heavyweight championship. I had made plans to go right after the last fight with Schmeling. That Dutchman had to gum the works by taking one in the mid riff and squawking foul in [illegible] language. But this time there'll be no slipup. The no-foul rule will be in [illegible], Sharkey will knock him deader than a smoked herring [illegible]. I feel so sure Jack'll pickle the Fritzie this time that when I go down to buy tickets for Orangeburg for Jack and me next Sunday night I think I'll double up by getting my ticket for old New Orleans, as well.

"What makes you so sure Sharkey will win?" we queried, and Tony answered: "Well, the last time Jack was winning by the proverbial 40 city blocks when Schmeling took the out by the foul squawk route. If anyone showed himself to be Schmeling's master Jack did that day. And Sharkey now is better than ever. Say, I just left the squire and he looks like a million dollars. Eyes white and clear, step firm and springy, a rosy, healthy flush to his skin and carrying just enough weight for him to work on at Orangeburg. He's carrying about eight pounds, maybe 10, of superfluous weight. That's just enough for him to go through the training grind without burning up and going stale.

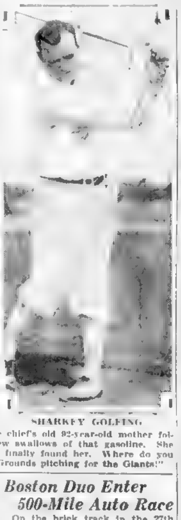


PALAZOLA AND SHARKEY

"When I say Jack is eight or 10 pounds over weight, I mean fighting weight. Some of that eight pounds is good solid weight. I never saw a fighter who takes better care of himself out of the ring than Sharkey. Jack spends most of his time in the open. When he isn't playing golf he's fishing. When he isn't fishing, he's hunting, or working on that farm of his up in New Hampshire. When he's here in town Jack isn't liquoring up like some fighters do. He has many good friends, steady sedate friends like Bill Kennedy, the clothier, and others, and Jack himself lives like a steady, sedate business man.

"I may go down to New York ahead of Sharkey," continued Tony, "for Johnny Buckley wants me to round up a couple of sparring partners. We'll not use 'em the first week at Gus Wilson's, however. Jack and I work on wind and legs a week at Orangeburg before donning the gloves. A week of road work will give Jack the necessary foundation for his training."

When we asked Palazola what Sharkey would do for recreation at Wilson's, Tony replied: "Jack is a great reader, mostly newspapers and magazines. In camp he goes over all the Boston and New York newspapers with a fine toothcomb. Nothing escapes him. Then Jack likes to play cards, pinochle, rummy and hearts. Pinochle is his favorite card game. For a guy that does not take his cards seriously, Jack is a mighty good pinochle player. Of course when he gets on edge and the training grind [illegible] boresome, Jack takes his pinochle seriously and will fight and wrangle over the game like a longshoreman. That's only natural. Later on we have to figger how to keep Jack in good spirits. Just now he's the feller that tells the stories and makes the laughs.



SHARKEY GOLFING

"This morning," chuckled Tony, "Jack told me he went down to the circus to interview the lion tamer. He says he found the lion tamer in a row with his wife. The lion tamer had taken refuge in the cage with the lions and his wife was outside challenging, 'Come out of there—you coward.'"

"Jack also told me he thought we'd better take a few gallons of a certain brand of gasoline with us to Orangeburg," went on Tony. "When I asked him why, Jack said the ads advised everyone to climb in their car and fill up with that gas, and then told the story Ed Wynne told over the radio the other night. It seems that the fire chief's old 92-year-old mother followed the 'ad' by imbibing of a few swallows of that gasoline. She was missing for three days. They finally found her. Where do you suppose she was? Up on the Polo Grounds pitching for the Giants!"

Crimson Courtmen Meet No. Carolina

Harvard's varsity tennis team will meet the University of North Carolina tennis team at the Divinity Courts, Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon in one of the most attractive matches on the Crimson schedule.

North Carolina, by defeating Harvard 7-2 a year ago, broke a string of Crimson victories which had run to 43 dual matches. Harvard has been unbeaten since that North Carolina defeat and is hopeful of avenging the 1931 defeat against the Southerners.

Boston Duo Enter 500-Mile Auto Race

On the brick track in the 27th annual Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes, May 30, will be two Boston men, William H. Richards and Paul V. Bailey.

Living within two blocks of each other in Roxbury and members of the same high school hockey team, these two carry the colors of Boston in the classic.

The car in which the young men ride was constructed by Richards, an M. I. T. graduate, with the financial assistance of Bailey.

Both were members of the High School of Commerce hockey team in 1923.

BOBBY BROWN HURLS TODAY FOR BRAVES

Cincinnati, May 5 — After three weeks of almost uninterrupted success against Eastern rivals, the league-leading Boston Braves open their first Western invasion of the season here this afternoon, with Weymouth Dan Howley's Reds furnishing the opposition.

[illegible] which calls for the [illegible] to play four games with the Reds, three with the Pirates, [illegible] Cubs and four with the Cards [illegible] whether Bill McKechnie has a group of great [illegible] or just a gang of [illegible].

All four western entries are playing [illegible] ball these days. If the Bay Staters can hold their own [illegible] around the wide [illegible] return home with [illegible] to be regarded as a [illegible] pennant threat. [illegible]

It has [illegible] five out of six [illegible] out of five [illegible] three out of the [illegible] brilliant pitching [illegible] hitting [illegible] of pep and confidence.

Worthington's Work at Bat Big Help

Credit for the improvement the visitors have shown over last season [illegible] to Huck Betts, veteran rookie pitcher who has won three games in a row, Red Worthington, who is hitting close to 400 and playing a bang-up game in left field and Art Shires, who though he has been out of action ten days due to injuries provided the spark which set the team off on its mad dash to the top.

Shires joined the Braves in Philadelphia yesterday. He announced upon his arrival here that he would be ready to return to first base as soon as he is asked. He'll not receive an invitation, however, until, if ever, his mates start losing. Manager Bill McKechnie wouldn't think of breaking up a winning combination.

Billy Urbanski, regular shortstop, has a split finger which kept him out of the final game in Philly. He expects to be able to play this p. m. If not, Bill Akers, who suitably filled the berth yesterday, will stay on the job.

Bobby Brown May Toss for Tribe Today

Several changes have taken place in the Reds since last the Braves were in this neck of the woods. Joe Stripp, Tony Cuccinello, Horace Ford and [illegible] are no longer around and among the newcomers present are Chick Hafey, Babe Herman, Andy High and Ernie Lombardi.

Bobby Brown, star rookie right hander, is expected to pitch the first game for the Braves. His opponent, according to the consensus, will be Larry Benton, a former Wallace [illegible].

As a warmup for today's tilt, the Braves turned in a 3 to 0 victory over the Phils, to gain the edge in a three game series and [illegible] their [illegible] lead over the second place Cubs, who smothered the Pirates.

The combination of "Huck" Betts, who allowed but four hits and Red Worthington, who made two singles and a home run in four times up and knocked in all the Tribal runs, was entirely too much for the Shottenmen.

Brains, Control Make Betts Braves' Ace

By JOE CASHMAN

What is it that enables Walter "Huck" Betts to step into the majors at the age of 33 and make the greatest hitters in the business look like "bushers"? [illegible] that he has three [illegible] in as many starts to his credit this season while several of the most highly-rated flingers in the league have yet to break into the win column?

The answer is brains and control. Few pitchers in the league, good or bad, appear to have less stuff [illegible] veteran Braves [illegible]. He [illegible] blinding speed, has only a fair curve and ordinary [illegible] throw [illegible].

But his ability to discover what a batter can't hit by merely watching him stand up at the plate is uncanny and his control so perfect that almost invariably he can throw the ball to the weak spot.

And hitters who seem to be without a weakness, he conquers by outguessing them. He can judge the kind of ball they are looking for and serves them another.

He never throws up anything soft to hit. He continually keeps the opposition off stride and swinging at bad balls, a system which is bound to result in a lot of short soft flies. The plays he [illegible] of the game he has worked prove this. They are faced with [illegible].

Betts has shown improvement in every start. He was good in his debut against the Giants in New York, better against that club here and yesterday he was virtually invincible, blanking the Phillies with four scattered safeties.

He figures to keep right on improving as the campaign progresses. For the more he sees of hostile batters, the more he will learn about them, and the more he learns about them, the more effective he should become.

That [illegible] work is one of the sensations of this young campaign. Yet it isn't as surprising as many believe. He won over 20 games a season for the St. Paul club of the American Association for the past three years. Any pitcher who can perform like that in Double A ball can be counted upon to hold his own in the big show.

Betts Had Tryout but Was Sent Down

The only surprising thing about Betts is that he was permitted to remain with the "Saints" until the Braves drafted him last fall. In view of his remarkable record out there, it will always remain a mystery why he wasn't bought or drafted long before.

Maybe it was because he had a tryout with the Phillies several years ago and was sent back. Some big league managers, you know, don't want to experiment with a prospect that another pilot has turned thumbs down on.

It was most fortunate for the Braves that Manager Bill McKechnie didn't feel that way about it. And very unfortunate for Manager Burt Shotten of the Phils that one of his predecessors didn't think Betts was good enough to stay in Quakertown.

Allen Meets Price at Salem Monday

Harry Allen of Brockton and Buster Price of Lynn have been signed to swap blows in a 10-round bout at Salem on Monday night. Both boys are punchers, and each will try for a kayo.

In the semifinal, Tony Aquero of Lynn will take on Andy Chapdelaine of Gloucester.

Joe Knight Fights in Argonne Show

Joe Knight of Cairo, Ga., has been signed to appear in one of the bouts at an Argonne show at the Arena on next Monday night. His opponent will be picked from the list of New England 120-pounders.

With the aid of Red Worthington's big bat and the cunning right hand of WALTER BETTS the Braves scalped the Phillies yesterday and continued to blaze the trail in the National League. It was the big right hander's third straight victory. Walter let the Phillies down with 4 hits and shut them out, 3 to 0. The triumph came after two victories over the Giants. High in hope the Braves hit the warpath for Cincinnati and are out to lift the h'ar of the Reds, today.

Diamond Dust

The world's champion St. Louis Cardinals are still climbing. They administered their second successive whitewash to the Cincinnati Reds, which gave them a clean sweep of a three-game series and sent them into the first division on the eve of the East's first invasion.

The Cleveland Indians lost no time in starting another victory streak. Stopped by the Browns after winning nine in a row, they turned right around and took the Mound City gang into camp, 8 to 3. That victory strengthened their hold on second place and left them only a game and a half back of the Senators as they started on their first tour of the East.

Home runs by Gehringer, Walker and Stone enabled the Detroit Tigers to nose out the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 7. As a result, the Bengals hit the Atlantic Coast today in third place, one game ahead of the Yanks, and the Pale Hose in seventh, only a half game in front of the Red Sox.

The final Braves-Phillies game was called at the end of the eighth inning to permit the two clubs to catch early trains to the West.

All the Eastern clubs in the National League will play in the West today but the Browns, who will be at Fenway, and the Indians, who are due in Philadelphia, are the only Western clubs in the American League booked to play in the East.

Worthington, Braves—Hit a home run and two singles to drive in all three Boston runs.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

By MARTY McMANUS
(Red Sox Third Baseman)
AS TOLD TO JOE CASHMAN

As far back as I can remember, I played ball. I spent much of the leisure moments of my childhood in Chicago either on the diamond or watching the great Cubs of the days of Tinker to Evers to Chance perform.

I never planned to be anything but a big leaguer when I grew up.

With that ambition in mind, I started playing semi-pro ball just before the war broke out. Then I entered the service, but still managed to play ball.

Marty McManus

I was assigned to the Panama Canal Zone. There I played with or against many major league stars and always held my own.

That convinced me that I was ready to step into pro ball and as soon as I was discharged, I returned to Chicago and began hunting for a berth.

I knew an old minor league umpire named Matty Fitzpatrick. I sought his assistance and he found me a job with Tulsa, in the Western League.

That club was not a St. Louis Browns' farm, as at present, but Pres. Bob Quinn of the Red Sox, then business manager of the Browns, heard about me, looked me over and bought me. I have been in the majors ever since.

378 IN BOSTON TRACK GAMES

The third annual Greater Boston Intercollegiate meet starts at the Harvard Stadium tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. when 378 athletes of the six Greater Boston colleges will compete in varsity and freshman events.

A total of five varsity and six freshman teams have been entered for the two day competition. The final events of the meet have been scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. on Saturday.

Despite the fact that half the Harvard track and field team will be competing at Princeton on Saturday in a dual track meet, Harvard tops the list of colleges in the varsity meet with an entry of 62 athletes.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology has entered 49 athletes, Northeastern 39, Tufts College 6, Boston College, the favorite, 34.

As in the two previous meets, both of which have been won by Harvard in the varsity and freshman divisions, five places will count in the scoring, first place counting 5 points, etc.

Waltham Nine in Opener

The Waltham Town Team will open its season next Sunday in a game at Bicycle Park, Waltham, against the [illegible] Town Team.

BOSTON PAIR WITH BROWNS FACE HOSE

St. Louis Browns, one of the clubs our Red Sox expect to beat out this season, come to the Fens this afternoon to open the first Western invasion of the season.

They bring with them two very popular Greater Boston boys in Irving "Slug" Burns of Cambridge and Irving "Bump" Hadley of Lynn.

Burns is starting his second season as the regular first-sacker of the team. And his record proves there are few better all-around initial-sack guardians in the league.

Hadley, once the pitching ace of the Senators, went to the Browns from the White Sox last week in a trade for Ralph "Red" Kress. Chicago secured him from Washington last winter in exchange for Carl Reynolds.

Burns, Melillo, Storti and Levy Team Up

Except for the absence of Kress the Browns will line up pretty much the same as they did last season, when they nosed out the Sox by a few points for fifth place.

Still working with Burns in the infield are Oscar Melillo at second, Len Storti at third and Jim Levey at short and "Goose" Goslin and Fred Schulte are back in the outfield. Taking Kress' place in the garden is Dave Campbell, secured from the Pale Hose with Hadley.

In other words, the Browns on paper don't appear to have improved to any extent since last year. The Sox have yet to show that they have, either, but Manager John Collins insists they are much better and predicts they will prove it by cleaning up against the Mound City outfit.

Should that happen, their rivals would change place in the standing as the fifth-place visitors arrive only three games ahead of the natives, who are in the cellar.

Horace "Hod" Lisenbee is listed to pitch for the Sox this p. m. Killefer is silent as to his mound choice but it wouldn't be surprising if he trotted out Hadley.

W. G. A. LEADERS FACE TEST TODAY

By BILL GRIMES

Although it has been on the losing end of both of its matches the Northern District is a slight favorite to put a halt to the unbroken march of the Southern District in the third round of the W. G. A. team matches today at the Wellesley Country Club.

In the opening match of the season Northern was swamped by Eastern and then was nosed out at Weston by Western.

On paper Northern is the strongest team in the association but it has not been clicking. Such star players as Miss Rosamond Vahey, the State champion; Miss Margaret Curtiss, former national titleholder, and Miss Grace English, who was the medalist in the State championship two years ago at Salem, have not won a match.

Southern holds decisions over Western and Eastern. In the first match Southern came from behind to win out by one point. In the second match, Southern, which is defending the championship, walked through Eastern.

Out at the Concord Country Club, the Western and Eastern districts are engaged in a tilt which will dissolve the present second place tie.

Western and Eastern have broken even in their two starts, the former losing to Southern at Thorny Lea and winning over Northern at Weston, while the latter lost to Southern after winning from Northern.

The Western District has six undefeated players, Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Miss Dorothy Richards, Miss Martha Brewer, Mrs. E. W. Pratt, Mrs. J. D. Woodfin and Miss Rene Henderson, while Mrs. H. R. Watson, Mrs. R. M. Gardiner and Miss Eleanor Le Bonte have each contributed two points to Eastern's cause.

Morelli Tangles With DeGlane at Arena

By JACK CONWAY

Al Morelli, famous Boston College football player, will shoot for the wrestling heights tonight when he battles Henri DeGlane of France in a world's championship wrestling bout at the Arena under the direction of Paul Bowser.

How good is Morelli as a wrestler?

Good enough to hold Gus Sonnenberg to a 30-minute draw, Charley Strack to a 15-minute draw and to bump off Dan Koloff, Marin Plestina and Pat McGill.

The late Stanley Stasiak helped mould Morelli in the early stages of his career.

Morelli has youth on his side. He isn't upset because he happens to be battling the champion. Al has an idea he can lick any man he can hit with his flying tackle.

Sonnenberg Tossed Fortune Into Silver

It was the flying tackle that enabled Gus Sonnenberg to give up a $25 a week job selling autos in Providence and step out and earn $250,000. Gus later sunk most of this dough into a silver mine.

Morelli also has the urge to make a lot of money. He's just got married, and has already found out that the old adage holding that two can live cheaper than one is the bunk. He wants the good things of life and knows that if he can knock off the champion tonight that he'll be in the big money.

That means city and country homes, flossy speed cars, maids, butlers and a lot of other things that come under the classification of luxuries.

The odds will all be against Morelli tonight. Anybody who denies DeGlane is not the greatest wrestling champion since the days of Frank Gotch merely proves his own ignorance.

Sonnenberg had a flying tackle but DeGlane beat the old Dynamiter and his bag of tricks.

Don George also has a fine tackle and is a better wrestler than Sonnenberg. Yet DeGlane licked him.

The Frenchman is as cold as ice. He knows every possible wrestling move and never makes a mistake. Fellows like that are pretty hard to beat.

Tunney twice whaled Jack Dempsey because he didn't make mistakes.

Boston College and Revere will turn out to root for Morelli.

The possibility of a local boy bringing the world's heavyweight title back to America naturally has the fans steamed up.

DeGlane will enter the ring a favorite, but sentiment and the hopes of the crowd will be under the Morelli banner.

Jim Browning, top body scissors star, will oppose Billy Bartush of Chicago in the semifinal which has a 30-minute limit.

Charley Strack, bad boy of wrestling, will oppose Alan Eustace of Kansas in the star preliminary.

There will be eight more prelims. Enough for any show.

Jack Conway Picks DeGlane With Aid of Magic Coin

JACK CONWAY flipped his famous magic coin today to get its aid in picking the winner of the world's championship wrestling bout between Henri DeGlane and Al Morelli tonight.

"Heads DeGlane, tails Morelli," said Jack.

GORDON'S WRESTLERS THRILL CROWD

Germaine Keeps Title After Desperate Struggle

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Ringling Brothers isn't the only circus and Hollywood is not the only home of actors.

A capacity house with fans literally hanging from every nook and crevice in Mechanics building were treated to a four-hour wrestling show that for action had more than a batch of hops in a hornet.

Bodies were butted, bitten and tossed around like chips in a tempest. Men and women cheered and booed, razzed and raved. Hats were ruined, police were called, and the doings in the ring resembled a convention of modified murderers outside the pale of the law.

Not having imbibed the rules of wrestling for 24 hours we learned that kicking a man in the face, stepping on his [illegible], giving an opponent [illegible] him the knee, plucking hair from an opponent's chest and trying to thumb his eyes out were part of the accepted plan of operations.

GRID GAMES AT HEIGHTS THIS YEAR

Boston College Eagles will scream in their own aerie this fall, for a new stadium will be built at the Heights, starting in June, on Alumni Field, which will be ready for the opening of the football season.

Only 18,000 seats will be provided this season, as the main game of the year with Holy Cross [illegible] for Worcester. In another year the new stadium will be expanded to accommodate nearly [illegible] spectators.

For the past 14 years Boston College has been playing its home football games at professional baseball parks. Until 1927 all games were played at Braves Field and from 1927 until the present Fenway Park has been used.

The authorities at the college believing that college football games should be played in the proper environment have been waiting for the day when the Heights would provide the setting for all of Boston College's home games. According to present specifications, the new field will be devoted entirely to football. The stands will be of steel construction.

The lay-out of the present cinder track will have to be changed considerably to fit into the new enclosure but [illegible] distance will be retained.

History of New York City Bound for the Screen a la "Cimarron"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, May 5—You would never in the world suspect that writer of excellent comedy, Nina Wilcox Putnam, would go serious on us. Yet that's just what she has done. Inspired by her successes in the movies, Nina has written a book called "American Citizen."

It is an epic on the order of Cimarron, except that where Edna Ferber builds her story in Oklahoma and shows the opening of that vast territory, Mrs. Putnam chooses New York as her locale.

Louella O. Parsons

Charles Rogers has purchased the screen rights to the Putnam novel. He bought it from a synopsis. The development of New York city from the early days when Manhattan was purchased from the Indians and later when John Jacob [illegible] was a fur trader will be told in the film.

Chatter in Hollywood

When Florenz Ziegfeld makes up his mind he usually gets what he goes after. He has been trying for days to borrow Edna May Oliver for the part of Mrs. Hawks in "Show Boat." Radio said "No, absolutely no. She is needed at home." But was Flo discouraged? He was not. He kept right on trying, with the result that Edna May Oliver was given a leave of absence and has left for New York to keep the stage engagement. The Claudette Colbert-Norman Foster marriage continues to carry on in spite of rumors. They have rented a house in the Hollywood Hills and people who plan to separate usually do not go housekeeping together.

It was an inspiration to team up the unique talents of Jackie Cooper and "Chic" Sale! Two superb actors—they create a pair of real-life characterizations, heart-warming, touching, uproariously funny all in one. Jackie tops the memorable performance he gave with Wallace Beery in "The Champ." Stage or screen have never seen the like of this boy genius—and now truly in William Johnston's story, "Limpy," he has a role that answers the demand of the public for an adult entertainment, packed with thrills for men and women as well as younger folk!

"Gettin' licked, my boy, is one thing. We've all got to take lickings in life—but we don't have to take defeat—"

Girl About Town

Lucky Sam!

Samson, the strong man, was cross as a bear
When Delilah the sneaky one cut off his hair.
But in times tough as these 'twould have tickled him so
To have had such good fortune—a haircut for no! —CAM.

Wire

From Texas Guinan, received yesterday . . . "Thanks for your charming letter. Am sailing tonight on steamship Bremen. Am going to Paris for one week to see if those French Francs are worth as much as our American Johns. I want to see why France gave us that Statue of Liberty and then had it built so that its back faced France instead of America . . . Am opening my new night club at Valley Stream, Long Island. Come in for the opening May 26. Remember me to the newspaper boys in Boston."

And that's to our inquiring readers as to the [illegible] Queen's whereabouts [illegible]

Snooping About:

Everett Montague of Brookline turned out a neat performance in Harvard's Dramatic Club's "Napoleon Intrudes" over in Cambridge last night . . . His dad, John Montague, took time off from his publicising "The Chocolate Soldier" to trot over and give his "Monty" a look over, with a couple of head nods and beams thrown in! . . . Dorchester's cute Jean Berry piloted her "Girl About Towners" club to Seaglades for dinner last eve . . . We regret we couldn't make it, since we were weeping a tear and tearing a tear in our best hankie over Alice Brady's convincing mourning at the Colonial . . . With an animated chat (between the acts) with the enchanting sprite Helen Ford, who nibbles her sandwiches while she talks . . . Tuesday at the Cocoanut Grove, Helen so intrigued the large audience when she stepped upon the floor, that we wouldn't be amazed if she "Peggy Anned" about on the same floor there as the next attraction . . . Jack Fay, Frank Rice and Benny Goldberg are circus bound tonight for a gawking and peanut-crunching contest . . . The babies! . . .

What, No Chocolates?

She: "Did you see in the papers that some people were poisoned through eating chocolates?"

He: "I fancy I did, but what about it?"

She: "Nothing, except I was thinking—er—how very safe we are!"

More Snoops:

Roy Lamson, who organized his music gang seven years ago, when he was a Harvard freshie, has toured Europe with them two summers, playing in 18 different countries! . . . That popular hotel manager calls up his bride (of five months) pretending to disguise his voice, inquires if her husband is at home . . . If not, could he call and see her . . . And should he bring out a sip or two, etc. . . . With his bride handing him back a similar line . . . They laugh and carry on like this twice a day . . . And he tells it on himself! . . . Gosh! . . . Spring does funny things . . . That labor paper will do an "off to Buffalo" if it's not more careful . . .

Flop Not the Word!

Pretty Theol Nelson, holding the world's record for long-distance tumbling, is in the fourth generation of the famous tumbling Nelsons . . . Her parents and five sisters are now with Sells-Floto, but not Theol, who stars here with Mr. Ringling's glamorous circus . . . She's that independent, wants to collect her own pay envelope . . . Adores her three-year-old daughter, who's learning tricks daily now . . . Mother Theol absented herself from the sawdust circle only three months while taking mental flip-flaps with old "Doc" Stork . . . And flip-flap is the word—never flip-flop—if you care for correctness, we were politely informed by Theol!

Chillicothe Chappie!

Just a dashing, 26-year-old darling, little, nervy guy from the Buckeye State, is this much discussed lion tamer, Clyde Beatty . . . Has excellent taste in selecting and wearing smart attire . . . A flashing smile, exhibiting perfect dental wide open spaces . . . Splendid diction and English . . . Noncommittal about heart palpitations for the Pretty Ones—although he did enjoy his dinner with the Ed Wynns in Manhattan last week, particularly because the Funny Fellow brought intriguer, Jeanne Aubert (French star) along! And there's a "Hot Cha" miss isn't there, Clyde? . . . He prefers chancing tiger-taming to girl-taming . . . (We'll not argue there) . . . Did his first actual training performance in '23 when the trainer of a polar bear act failed to arrive . . . No one would carry on but Clyde.

Reception to Fiedler Is Feature

By MOSES SMITH

An opening night of the Symphony Hall Pops concerts is almost invariably the cue for the reviewer of music to write meaningless nothings about the springtime tra-la. He is only too happy to unbend after a season of concerts which he attends not to enjoy music, but to describe to others why (usually) he did not enjoy it. The Pops are supposed to offer opportunity for relaxation from serious matters, to present programs the hearing of which is merely an accompaniment to the more important art of conversation.

* * *

Arthur Fiedler

For last night's opening Arthur Fiedler threatened to disrupt this routine, for he had set an unusually pretentious list of works that included a rarity like Walton's satirical "Facade," first heard in Boston at last year's Pops, an elaborate series of excerpts from Wagner's "Meistersinger"; and the Haydn Variations on his Austrian National Anthem, to say nothing of the Overture to Weber's "Freischutz" and Tchaikovsky's "1812" Overture.

With such an array it might be supposed that the thing for the reviewer to write about would be the quality of this program. And yet the outstanding feature was none of these works. It was an extra number, the March, "Wintergreen for President," from George Gershwin's "Of Thee I Sing," which was so stormily applauded that it, in turn, had to be played again. Its reception was all the more remarkable since the preceding selection had been from the "Band Wagon," music of Schwartz, with the composer himself present to acknowledge the applause occasioned by the performance.

But the night, quite obviously, was not any composer's: it was Arthur Fiedler's, from beginning to end of the concert. The audience which filled almost every seat had, as indicated by its cordial manner throughout, been attracted primarily by the magic of his name. It was responsive to almost everything he did, so responsive and sympathetic, indeed, that it all seemed like a great big family party, where the professional reviewer either forgot his customary calling or was dreadfully out of place.

* * *

And so we pass by the performance of the [illegible] music performance which in respect to Fiedler's conducting and reaction to the music was rather more interesting than last year when the orchestral playing was distinctly not so good. The attendant appurtenances were of their customary quality: the decorated auditorium, the gay crowd, the amiable chatter, the cigarettes, each to his own brand, the confections and drinks. Good old Pops, harbinger of spring!

But there, we have forgotten that we were not to mention that subject.

WILL MORGAN ATTEMPT HEROIC RESCUE MOVE?

By B. C. Forbes

J. P. MORGAN dined with President [illegible] newspapers [illegible]

This may or may not turn out to be far-reachingly important. The redoubtable father of the present head of the House of Morgan oftener than once went to the rescue of Presidents of the United States at critical moments in the nation's history.

The original J. P. [illegible] towered [illegible] above American bankers [illegible] when some supreme emergency arose [illegible] was seen that he assumed the role of commander-in-chief of American finance. He [illegible] other bankers [illegible] before [illegible] faith [illegible] prompt [illegible]. And [illegible] disasters.

What [illegible] What [illegible] J. P. Morgan [illegible] What [illegible] Napoleon [illegible]

Unfortunately [illegible] present J. P. Morgan [illegible] follow in his father's footsteps [illegible] America's financial [illegible] Morgan [illegible] in that direction. Whereas the original J. P. [illegible] financial [illegible] magnitude [illegible] from [illegible] financial [illegible] more [illegible] He [illegible] each year abroad [illegible] England [illegible] leisure.

Partners Entrusted With Business

He [illegible] in New York, Philadelphia, London and Paris [illegible] to leave the brunt of the work [illegible] Thomas W. Lamont [illegible] chief responsibility. He [illegible] Europe.

I asked him when he told me he [illegible] take courage to go away at a time like [illegible] He replied [illegible] didn't see that there was much that could be done by [illegible] here.

No [illegible] in America has so completely [illegible] our big banker.

Will J. P. Morgan even at this late day [illegible] calculated to win public applause?

If America ever needed a financial [illegible] this moment.

Gloomy New York Irks Giannini

A. P. Giannini, the husky California banker [illegible] more branch banks than any other banker in America [illegible] bestrode the continent as controller of big banks, who created [illegible] unique billion-dollar bank investment trust, who retired [illegible] two [illegible] ago) at 60 and who recently regained control of [illegible] Transamerica after a historical bout with Wall Street interests [illegible] is now visiting New York [illegible] the deposits of [illegible] Bank of America in California have recently increased $27,000,000.

Mr. Giannini has been the moving spirit in a back-to-good-times movement in the Golden State. By means of advertising and radio, a most aggressive campaign has been conducted. Mr. Giannini states that the results have been beneficial not only to California banking institutions but to the whole state.

He doesn't propose to stay long in New York. Like most [illegible]tors he prefers the back-home atmosphere to the pessimistic atmosphere now enveloping the nation's financial center.

Congress on Rampage Again

Washington once again is being blamed for [illegible] of nervousness in Wall Street. This column is being besieged by telegram and letter to urge citizens in every state [illegible] to write Senators and Representatives demanding passage of the manufacturers' sales tax, prompt agreement on other sensible levies, drastic governmental economies and the adjournment of Congress at the earliest possible moment.

Do [illegible] legislators realize that by persisting in playing petty partisan, selfish politics, they are playing with fire, with a fire which may get out of bounds?

—STATE ST.— Hears:

The market recognized the calculated resistance levels in rather unexciting fashion. However, the financial community is so downcast over the steady decline from mid-March that a few days of desultory rally will be more than welcome. In the meantime it is not too much to hope for cheerful bit of news in contrast to the drab flashes of recent weeks.

AUTO SHARES SELL BELOW BOOK VALUES

By FRANK H. MELOON

Study furnished us today by Benjamin H. Cram, automotive analyst, shows a large representation of the group of automobile and automobile accessory stocks selling on the stock exchanges below their book values. Mr. Cram [illegible]

B. H. Cram

"A comparison of the market price of each of the leading car manufacturers with the corresponding book values reveals that for eight of these companies, the current market price is less than 20 per cent of the book value as indicated by the 1931 year-end balance sheet. Peerless stock at $1.50 per share represents less than 8 per cent of the assets applicable to the stock as valued in the Sept. 30, 1931, balance sheet. General Motors, Nash and Packard common stocks are currently selling at prices about 28 per cent below their book value."

• • •

The stock market prices of three other big automobile companies are given as about 45 per cent of their indicated book value.

• • •

"While I was over in New York the other day I talked with a prominent publisher of that city, and he expressed his admiration for the way in which many New England manufacturers are endeavoring to turn adversity into prosperity by taking up new lines of production. I think that the entire country is watching us with considerable interest," writes Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the New England Shoe & Leather Association.

• • •

Last week we called attention to the fact that some astronomers had picked the Conways up in the White Mountain region, no relation to Jack Conway, outstanding boxing authority, though he vacations among them, as the best spot from which to view the total eclipse of the sun August 31. The choice of the Conways and nearby Fryeburg, Me., has caused a rush of advance calls from tourists and other vacationists for quarters in those places.

• • •

Perhaps these astronomers have picked the Conways and Fryeburg on account of their altitude, as nearer to the sun than the coast towns and cities. However that may be, Treasurer Paul E. Thurlow, the Cape Cod Steamship Co., which is to run the Dorothy Bradford between Boston and Provincetown the coming season, tells me:

"I read with interest an item in your column pertinent to the total eclipse which occurs on August 31 next.

"I am officially advised by the proper authorities at the State House that Provincetown is the most desirable place in Massachusetts and or New England to witness this phenomena because it will be in absolute totality at this point. The added reason for the above statement is the fact that the effect upon the wild bird life (gulls, etc.) is most interesting and astounding. This, I understand, is what makes the spectacle a real show."

St. Regis Paper Net for Year $915,303

St. Regis Paper Co. net for year ended Dec. 31, was $915,803 after depreciation, taxes, subsidiary preferred dividends, extraordinary charges of $566,771, etc., against $4,257,321 in 1930. Net sales, royalties, etc., were $13,249,823, against $16,575,770.

Current assets Dec. 31 were $8,437,245 and current liabilities exclusive of a secured bank loan of $6,000,000 and funded debt of $694,700 due in 1932, $4,112,821, against current assets of $9,251,400 and current liabilities of $4,813,787 at end of 1930.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

Signs that Washington was showing a reversal in its attitude on taxes brought a turn in the market. Reduction in the stock tax by the Senate was considered a straw in the wind. Wall Street is ready to grasp at even the thinnest straws these days, which gives the rally at least a 50-50 chance of going further.

Short Interest

The short interest isn't anything extraordinary, but is understood to have gone up quite a bit in the last few days, affording the basis for a fair technical upturn . . . weakness in U. S. Steel preferred, which at one time seemed on the skids for fair, was disturbing. Insurance Co. selling was said to have been responsible . . . the way Steel preferred acted, however, was paralleled by quite a few others. It's a pretty thin market both up and down.

It was [illegible] to see stocks kicking back [illegible] from their lows. This shows that there's life in the old "boy" yet.

Action of Oils

The oils act well on the tape, particularly Standard of N. J. . . Rise in Dutch currency against the dollar helped put Royal Dutch up as well as short covering.

Now that the General Motors dividend is out of the way the stock ought to do a little better. Motors should be able to earn its dividend requirements in the second quarter.

IMPORTED RADIO FEATURES PROVE POPULAR IN U. S.

By [illegible]

Listeners in this Western hemisphere look for an ever increasing flow of diversified European radio programs in the near future. Sound scouts of the big U. S. sanctums are continuously [illegible] schedules overseas in search of such offerings as might be well received this side of the wide water.

• • •

HEARD HERETOFORE.

To date there have been Peace Parleys, Disarmament Conference, Premiers, Princes, Dictators, Prelates, yes, even Kings and Queens. No end of fine music from Continental Capitals has also graced our air waves. Those will continue to come [illegible] more marked regularity.

Now [illegible] our Yankee microphones [illegible] novelty. Unusual occurrences over there are desired. For example, local color originating in a London pub or a bit of Paris sidewalk cafe atmosphere. Surely there is much more merrymaking and [illegible] imbibing night life in Europe than has been heard heretofore [illegible] radio.

MORE AND MORE.

We'll hear [illegible] before 1932 takes its position [illegible] broadcasting [illegible] present plans. Before [illegible] American studios [illegible] introducing foreign radio [illegible] midst with great [illegible] movie magnates did when they imported Maurice Chevalier, Greta Garbo, Emil Jannings and numerous others.

Right now, it would seem Kentucky Derby doings from quaint old Louisville, as scheduled for Saturday afternoon, presents the most picturesque loudspeaker promise.

WELCOME, FLOYD!

On Saturday night that widely well known Floyd Gibbons returns to National Broadcasting Co. networks in his favorite role of "Headline Hunter." His first appearance on a coast-to-coast hookup since coming home from the Far East, will deal with recent developments in Honolulu and particularly with the possibilities of passing control of the Hawaiian Island back to our Navy Department. Gibbons will talk for 15 minutes, the period coming to New England via WEEI of Boston [illegible]

STOCKS STEADY AFTER EARLY SELLING

New York, May 5—Pivotal shares steadied in trading in the New York Stock Exchange today after early selling had been absorbed.

Wall Street was buzzing with vague rumors of constructive developments impending in Washington.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS UP

Stocks slumped rather sharply in the first hour, only to recover thereafter. By early afternoon extreme losses of 1 to 3 points were largely recovered.

After recovering most of a 1-to-3-point decline, stocks sagged again and the close was easy. Rails were heavy.

Atchison, New York Central and Union Pacific lost 1 to 2. Allied Chemical, Coca Cola and Western Union were off about a point net.

Losses in U. S. Steel, American Can and American Telephone were moderate. Transactions approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Bonds still wre under pressure here and there, but U. S. Governments came back strongly after yesterday's setback. There still was considerable pressure on the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, but it showed some further signs of lifting.

The stock market met support at approximately the low levels of the previous session.

General Motors sagged ⅛ point to a new low at 9⅞, on reduction of the quarterly dividend to 25 from 50 cents.

International Shoe, in which a short squeeze seemed to be developing yesterday, sagged more than a point. Oils were steady.

Rumors regarding constructive developments afoot in Washington were highly nebulous, and largely concerned with efforts to solve the problems of taxation, economy, and budget balancing.

SALES TAX WAY OUT

Important banking quarters have felt that the only way out of the federal fiscal snarl was the imposition of a general, non-discriminatory sales tax, and some of the rumors involved revival of this scheme.

In view of recent signs of abatement of necessitious liquidation in stocks, brokerage quarters were inclined to feel that the time was ripe for a rally in the market, provided anything sufficiently impressive in the way of good news might appear, but few were willing to hazard an opinion as to whether a rally could carry far at this time.

While a reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate of 3 per cent has been expected in recent weeks, in connection with the reserve system's credit expansion program through purchases of government securities, the active outflow of monetary gold which started this week with the House passage of the Goldsborough bill made the outlook more uncertain.

Some bankers thought the Federal Reserve might hesitate to cut its rate while the outflow of metal was in progress, unless it should decide to do so as a reassuring gesture.

The market was helped by having the uncertainty of Federal Motors dividend news out of the way. Cutting the quarterly disbursement to 25 cents from 50 had been too widely expected to prove much of a disappointment.

The market will be free from important dividend uncertainties for some days now, although the American Telephone dividend action later in the month is being awaited with much interest.

RADIO LEADER SEES GAINS

New York, May 5 (AP)—Leslie S. Gordon, president of DeForest Radio Co., informed stockholders in a statement today that the company had "concrete assurance" its busines was stepping up.

The corporation's sales for the month and its unfilled orders at present are "larger than at any time during the past eight months." February was 14 per cent ahead of January, March was 19 per cent above February, and April was 18 per cent higher than March.

In the 12 months ended March 31 the company had net loss of $138,394 after allowing for acquisition of Jenkins Television Corporation. Figures are not comparable with a year ago because of changes in the financial structure.

McIntyre Mines' Gold Output Higher

FRAUDS SELL IN BANKS' NAMES

New York, May 5 (AP)—Several large New York banks are asking their out-of-town correspondents to keep an alert watch for vendors of wildcat securities.

Reports received by New York banks with investment affiliates, including Chase National Bank and National City Bank, say salesmen have appeared in a number of communities posing as representatives of these institutions and seeking to get investors to switch their investments.

Usually the salesman suggests that the owner of say 10 shares of American Telephone exchange his stock for 500 shares of some gaudily embossed but practically worthless security.

Revival of wildcatting has reached considerable proportions. Correspondent institutions are working closely with the large banks, seeking cases where alleged security salesmen represent themselves as members of the banks' staffs.

Closing in London Market Is Steady

London, May 5 (AP)—Trading today on the Stock Exchange was quiet but cheerful. A slight decline in giltd-edged securities took place in the absence of a change in the bank rate, but there was cheerfulness in Argentine rails on the company's reassuring statements regarding future prospects. The closing was steady.

Paris and Berlin markets were closed for Ascension Day.

Grains Stage a Rally in Chicago Market

Chicago, May 5 (AP)—Corn rallied and scored advances today after tumbling to the lowest price level in a generation.

Leading specialists said in connection with the rally that corn wa sbeginning to attract speculative attention, and was now displaying stubbornness. The falling off in corn receipts and constantly improving cash demond gave the corn market a better foundation than had been seen for months.

In the late dealings wheat, rye and oats recovered with corn, and as a result of purchasing for previous speculative sellers. Corn closed firm ⅛ to ⅝ above yesterday's finish; wheat unchanged to ⅛ lower; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions 2 to 5 cents down.

438 New Industries Started Along Pennsy's Lines

Philadelphia, May 5—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today that 438 new industrial enterprises were established along its rails last year.

Ninety industries along the Pennsylvania's tracks expanded and extended their existing plants in 1931. As with new enterprises, however, these extensions, while fairly large in number, were generally on a smaller scale and lower in productive capacity than those completed in previous years.

Among the new industries located on the Pennsylvania were producers and distributors of gasoline and oil, sand and gravel, electric refrigerators, explosives, bakery goods, furniture, lumber, pipe and various warehousing enterprises.

Swift Earnings Cover Requirements

Chicago May 5—Edward F. Swift, president of Compania Swift Internacional, says: "The company has no bank debts nor any other obligations, except current trade debts not yet due.

"Estimated earnings for the first four months of 1932 equaled or exceeded the earnings for the same period in 1931 and fully covered dividend requirements. Business tonnage is being well maintained and indications are that results will continue satisfactory."

SHOE OUTPUT IS LARGER

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Boston trade review says that for the first quarter of 1932 boot and shoe production in New England was 8.3 per cent above the output for the same month of last year. Some shoe manufacturers are operating in a large way, but other factories are about closed down.

Producers of the cheaper lines of women's shoes are most active. Some activity is reported in the hide and skin market, and sole leather tanners are replenishing their supplies.

Building and engineering contracts awarded in New England during the past week again make a more favorable showing, being about double the average for the previous weeks of the year. Paints are more active.

Factories producing rubber goods are moderately active, and the mills producing writing paper operated at an increased rate during April. Considerable activity also was noticed in plants producing sateen and twill dress goods, food products and cigars. Increased operations on the state highways are employing some of the surplus labor.

ADVENTURES OF AN AUTOGRAPH HUNTER

Signature of Greta Garbo. Very rare.

By Zukor Herowitz,
World Famous Autograph Wheedler

Autograph hunting has become America's most fascinating sport, as evidenced by the fact that this country will be represented in the 1932 Olympic games by a team of skilled autograph collectors. The autograph hunter is born. My father was a Fuller brush man, and my grandfather sold Buckeye paintings to fit any size frame. The autograph hunters will be found loitering around theater lobbies, in boudoirs and in public institutions. Before going into the matter of equipment, which is comprised of pen, pencil, eraser, checkbooks, paper, etc., I want to tell you about the adventure I had getting the autograph of Clark Gable. The details will be revealed in tomorrow's paper. Don't miss it if you can.

Miss Cunningham went to France in 1915 with the Harvard unit of the British Expeditionary Force, remaining with that unit for a year, when she returned for duty at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

WITH AMERICAN UNIT

She returned to France with the American unit in 1917 and saw duty at Deuxnouds, Verennes and Biery. She did not come home until 1919.

Miss Cuningham was vice president of the American Women's Overseas League of New England, a member of the American Legion and of the Nurse's Association. She graduated from Portia Law School and Simmons College Social Service and was supervisor of the children's health clinic in Winchester. A brother, who lives in Rochester, N. H., survives.

The outstanding job creation contracts were those by the R. H. White Co., for $49,000; William Filene's Sons Co., for $45,000; R. H. Stearns & Company, for $12,810, and the Priscilla Baking Lunch Co., for $10,000.

Department stores have assumed the leading role thus far in the drive. The department stores yesterday furnished a large crew of men and women from their own forces to serve as canvassers.

What Would You Think?

You Would Think That She Was THINKING

THINKING? PERHAPS SO. PROBABLY NOT

This picture of a female chimpanzee owned in Germany raises again the question, "Do animals think?"

This looks like a thoughtful chimpanzee. On the other hand, it is quite certain that if chimpanzees or other animals do think, they do not assume human attitudes like that of Rodin's "The Thinker."

This high type lady simian has probably been taught to assume this attitude by her trainer.

Do animals think at all, and if so, OF WHAT DO THEY THINK?

Many have said, reasonably, that since animals cannot TALK it is probable that they cannot THINK consecutively.

We ourselves, as you can soon prove in your own mind, CANNOT THINK WITHOUT THE USE OF WORDS.

As we think our thoughts take WORD-FORM. You cannot think as simple a thought as "I shall get myself a new hat tomorrow" without actually using in your mind the words "get" and "hat" and "tomorrow."

This lady chimpanzee has no words and if she has none how can she have any thoughts?

It would probably be more accurate to say that animals FEEL, FEAR, DISLIKE, WANT, and even YEARN, but cannot do any actual thinking.

But that makes little difference, since life is really made up of emotions, while words and thoughts merely EXPRESS the emotions.

A mother's delight looking down upon the face of her newborn child need no words, and no words could add to her perfect happiness. And the baby too young to speak, laid upon its mother's breast, needs no word-thought to express contentment.

"Do animals think?" is an interesting question, but a more IMPORTANT question is this:

"What is the real difference between the animals and ourselves?"

They probably have not our thoughts, but they have our feelings. They suffer pain, physical and mental. A dog mourns the loss of his master. The piteous mooing of a cow when its calf is taken away tells the sorrow of a real mother.

Are the animals our lower brothers, struggling upward in the scale of evolution, pitifully limited on all sides, victims of what would seem to be a frightful system of injustice on the earth?

If so, they are not so far different from us human beings, also pitifully limited, struggling, and the vast majority of us living in anxiety and, like this lady chimpanzee, THINKING VERY LITTLE.

A Strong Bank Union

The fears of the Atlantic National Bank depositors are now safely behind them.

The First National guarantees EVERY PENNY.

Atlantic National deposits amounted to $65,000,000.

FIRST NATIONAL ASSETS AMOUNT TO $630,000,000.

There's ten to one. Pretty good odds. Overwhelmingly safe odds, as a matter of fact. From the largest and most liquid bank in New England.

Business goes on as usual. The accounts of the Atlantic depositors are merely transferred without interruption and without inconvenience to an institution which can carry them on without turning a hair.

First National will be credited with a fine contribution to the business stability and banking dependability of this section of the country. With its augmented deposits and new corps of depositors, it takes on an additional responsibility for service to the business interests and the people of New England, which we hope will be generously administered.

Dame Rumor and her evil niece, False Whisper, got in their malicious work on the Atlantic. This vicious pair have been out to rout. We expect we have seen the last of them. There is no room for them among decent people.

Don't Forget Mother

You have only one mother.

In all your human relationships there is none quite like her.

She can admire your talents. She can ignore your faults. She can efface herself in your hour of triumph. She can suffer your defeat, and bathe your wounds when the world has left you.

She went to the edge of death to get you. She brought you out of oblivion. She gave you your strength from her strength. She nurtured you in the still watches of the night. She bestowed upon you love, affection, honor and decency.

You must remember her always. But certainly on Mother's Day. She will appreciate some visible token of your veneration for her. Cynics say this is pretense. Let them say it. Your only interest is in what she will say, or think.

New York Day by Day

Failures by Night

NEW YORK, May 5—New Yorkers a wayfarer sees after 3 a. m. suggest the inhabitants of another world. They seep into the cheap restaurants along Broadway and the Bowery, bucking themselves up with steaming black coffee and smoking cigarettes chain fashion.

They travel alone and conversation is in scanty jerks. Silence is the defense mechanism for cloaking an unhappy past. Amid the suspicionings of the submerged they are perpetual John Does, clinging to the shadows and asking nothing but to be left alone.

Now and then there is a woman, hollow-eyed and frowzy wrecks twitching from booze to drugs. In the manner of scavenging night birds of the jungle, they drift out after the metropolis is in its first dead sleep. Compared to the noisy pageantry of daylight, they seem so many wraiths.

Every phase of failure is represented—the drunkard, hophead, panhandlers and bum. They turn night into day to hide from a society that has passed them by. How they live, no one knows. Yet some have carried on for years, dead to all ambition and hope, completely burnt out.

Among a few there is a pretense of seeking a job. After gulping their coffee until sunup, they shiver before the want ad. bulletin boards. But they merely stare and mosey off. They are the misfits that coil into the city's great economic question mark.

In the uglier alcoves of the Bowery, are those awaiting in fuzzy-eyed despair the eruption of night sleepers in upstairs lodging houses and cellar flops. Here they toss and often moan in the minor of an African chant until night comes and the business of living becomes starkly real again.

• • •

Sudden thought: In all the years of patronage I never discovered an Italian restaurant that didn't skimp with the meat sauce for spaghetti.

• • •

Celebrities incognito in New York resort to black glasses to dodge the curious. No simple device so deceptive. Garbo employed it on her winter visit and Colonel Lindbergh slips them on when leaving his auto to enter an office building. Strangely enough, too, dark glasses create an aloofness. Like a monk's hood.

• • •

Thomas Hardy, returnng to England, reports that America offered only two great things—high buildings and Edna St. Vincent Millay. A set-back to many persons and things, including a fat snub for Niagara Falls.

• • •

A giant corporation, in throes of reorganization, is selecting executives from the fly-weights. It believes the keenest minds are among diminutive physically. The movie industry has often exploited "little guys." One of the most highly publicized in the studios is Irving Thalberg, who weighs 128 pounds. Adolph Zukor is undersized, as was the late Marcus Loew. Ernest Truex is a favorite star. The idea is worth watching. The world came a cropper with "big stiffs" mainly at the helm.

• • •

Oliver Herford's mobile visnomy is seen around The Players, but he rarely ventures north of 14th st. In England he is regarded as America's foremost humorist—in the category with Mark Twain. In a wise-cracking age, he stands out like the Empire in a huddle of mud-flats—last of the mid-Victorian wits and most accomplished.

• • •

Another pleasant change in a cock-eyed cosmos is a sudden relief from the go-getter, who was in fashion during the boom. I refer to the breathless boys who telephoned from investment houses. There was a vein of innocent candor about their fixation to let me in on good things. I was often swept off my feet by their concentration to a noble impulse to make me rich. It was disillusioning to poke my head out of the sea floor wreckage and realize I was just another sucker running away with hook, line and sinker.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Making Up Your Mind?

YOU MUST DO something—take one step or another—so you make up your mind. Or — do you? Is that decision really reached then?

You think it is. You think that you make up your mind afresh every time you face a new problem. But you don't.

Elsie Robinson

YOU ARE ALWAYS MAKING UP YOUR MIND.

AND EACH SEEMINGLY NEW DECISION IS COLORED AND SHAPED BY ALL YOUR PAST DECISIONS.

You are always making up your mind; and most of the time you don't realize it.

Every thought you think, every opinion you express or listen to, however trivial, however easily forgotten, helps you make up your mind.

FOR NOTHING IS EVER REALLY FORGOTTEN. NOTHING IS REALLY TRIVIAL. EVERY ACT IN YOUR LIFE LEAVES ITS MARK UPON YOU, FOR GOOD OR EVIL.

This morning you neglected a chore. It wasn't much of a chore. Its neglect did not affect your day's program, and no one knew of that neglect, so you think it didn't matter.

But it did matter!

Tomorrow, or next week, or next year you are going to force a really important problem.

THAT LITTLE NEGLECT IS GOING TO MAKE IT EASIER FOR YOU TO RUN AWAY FROM THAT PROBLEM.

Each time you give way to laziness or cowardice—

Each time you tell a "white lie," or do some malicious little act, or think a filthy thought, or make an excuse for yourself, or pretend to be something you aren't—

Each time you are making up your mind for all the rest of your life!

Good people do not become good by single righteous acts. Bad people do not become bad by isolated vicious decisions.

Good people become good as the result of a multitude of unconsidered, seemingly forgotten, decent deeds.

Bad people become bad as the result of countless cowardly, dishonest, greedy, vulgar, venomous acts, each one of which seemed trivial and excusable at the time it was committed.

"Well, that isn't a very hopeful theory," you say, "for what chance have I to make any progress if I am bound by all the fool things I did in the past?"

That's an easy one to answer. If the fool things of the past can bind you, so can the fine things of the present.

You are making up your mind as much today as you were 10 years ago. You aren't making it up quite as freely, for you are carrying the mark of all those old decisions and evasions; but you're only marked; you're not paralyzed. You are still a free man. You can still do the things your better self wants to do—be the man your better self wants to be.

No matter how badly beaten or battered you are, you can still cry:

"I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul."

Just Folks

Indebted

The interest on the mortgage on the house is overdue.
The grocer's writing letters threatening us that he will sue.
The plumber wants his money for a washer for a tap.
The Damsel Shoppe is dunning us for sister's evening wrap,
But the thing that worries mother till her face is wreathed in frowns,
Is the fact that we're indebted for a dinner to the Browns.

We haven't paid the doctor since the market went to smash.
The man who runs the laundry writes to say he needs some cash.
I owe the tailor something and I hate to catch his eye;
I always look the other way until he's traveled by;
But the thing that worries mother isn't money that she lacks,
But the fact that we're indebted for a dinner to the Blacks.

It is not for me to quarrel with the women and their ways;
They've a certain code of honor and from it no one strays.
Men may think their worries greater, but the social laws are stern,
And the dinner you've accepted is the meal you must return.
So I sympathize with mother as she lies awake o' nights,
Since for weeks we've been indebted for a dinner to the Whites.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate No. 8 — Five-billion-dollar Federal loan for public works and to relieve unemployment.

Wagner: Champion of Social Justice

By Claude G. Bowers

IN A STATEMENT setting forth his constructive plan on unemployment insurance, Senator Wagner had the courage and honesty to say what every one is thinking:

"Sound business and good conscience both command us, in dealing with unemployment, to abandon the methods of poor relief, with its ballyhoo, its inadequacy, inequality and uncertainty, which are a drain on the sympathy of the giver and a strain on the character of the taker."

Agreeing with every word, it is enough to accept the charge of inadequacy — which surely has been demonstrated by this time.

The Clothing Relief Division of the Emergency Unemployment Organization has just announced that within two weeks it must abandon its distribution of clothing to those in need of it because of the exhaustion of funds.

The job-drive launched in February under the auspices of powerful organizations with the view of getting jobs for a million men, is to be abandoned without having reached its goal. It is claimed that, through this drive, 668,607 men have been given jobs. We do not doubt it at all, but we assume, with reason, that this means great numbers given jobs for a week or a month.

With the records showing a decided increase in unemployment within this period, it is impossible to conclude that 668,607 men have been given permanent jobs.

• • •

Nothing Wild About the Plan

One year ago there were 6,000,000 breadwinners on the streets; today there are more than 8,000,000.

And months ago both Senator Wagner and Senator LaFollette proposed the floating of a prosperity loan to put a vast army of the jobless to work on public construction; and nothing has been done.

There is nothing wild about this plan — it squares with common sense and meets the approval of such economists as Prof. F. W. Taussig of Harvard University, who has just written Senator Wagner:

"I am glad to see that you continue your work toward mending the depression by careful and discriminating expenditures on public works on the part of the Federal Government. I believe you are on the right track and hope you will succeed. I am quite in accord with you that the proper way of financing is the issue of long-term bonds."

• • •

Senator Explains His Insurance Plan

Of more permanet importance is the Senator Wagner plan for unemployment insurance—similar in purpose to that adopted by most great civilized countries. When it was first proposed it was pounced upon as "socialistic," although Bismarck, who hated socialism, adopted it during his regime. Then the foes of the plan insisted that, while unemployment insurance may be good, it should be left entirely to the individual industries to adopt or reject it. This was tantamount to throwing it overboard. Now it is announced that an agreement has been reached by the Senate Committee to recommend compulsory insurance by the States.

This does not mean that the States are to enter the insurance business.

Or that the States are to contribute to the insurance fund out of the public treasury.

Senator Wagner explained:

"All that a system of compulsory insurance necessarily involves is that the employer is under statutory obligation to provide insurance or reserves to protect his employes against a stated period of unemployment."

And that must come, despite the bourbons and politicians.

• • •

Qualities of Constructive Statesmanship

The agreement of the Senate committee is a triumph for Wagnerian persistence. He was the sponsor of the plan, and, under the usual rules, he would have been chairman of the Senate committee. There was interference, ascribed to the White House, and another Senator not in sympathy with the idea, was put at the head. The fact that the committee is now unanimous, and the President has apparently been won over is a tribute to the Senator from New York.

Within six years Wagner has won recognition among thinkers and economists as one of the foremost constructive thinkers in the Senate. He has submitted answers to problems, and the answers have been sound — and never demagogic. Never once has he gone off half-cocked. Behind every measure he has submitted has been exhaustive investigations and consultations with economists and specialists. Not one has been partisan in inspiration or effect. Most, if not all, have been inspired by a passion for social justice.

Junior Day Music

Music, we are told, is the sublime expression of joy. Music is a primal necessity of human life, and always has been. In his exploration of the ancient tombs and temples, the archeologist is certain to come upon the harp, lute or lyre. Before that the Stone Age man beat the drawn goat skin with the clumsy wooden mallet to give musical expression to his moods.

Damrosch warns us that unless we stand by the musician of today, the next generation will be without music. Hardly. Man would beat a tattoo on the trees, if nothing else availed.

Anyway, the Massachusetts Federation of Music Clubs will put on its Junior Day program for young musicians tomorrow at the Y. W. C. A. The participants who play and sing will range from four to eighteen years. Go, if possible. And give them a hand. The world needs music today.

The Country Needs Cheer

A reader of this newspaper sends seven Biblical quotations evidently justifying the use of liquor and challenges anyone to produce a single quotation from the Bible which can be said in any way to justify prohibition.

Among the quotations he sends are the following:

> "Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart, for God now accepteth thy works."
>
> "Corn shall make the young men cheerful, and new wine the maids."
>
> "They shall plant vineyards and drink the wine thereof."
>
> "Wine that maketh glad the heart of man."
>
> "Wine that cheereth God and man."

The interesting and identical theme of all these quotations, you will notice, is joy, gladness, cheerfulness.

Anything that would put some joy in the land and make glad the heart of man would certainly be a noble experiment and a welcome relief in these drab times when a smile on a man's face is as rare as a red rose in the middle of the Sahara desert.

Cardless Cruises

Five noted bridge experts, sailing for Bermuda, raised their hands on the pier and make a solemn oath to refrain from all forms of card playing for the duration of the cruise.

This doesn't strike one as such a great sacrifice. It only means not shuffling the pasteboards for a measly hundred hours. Still, it is a start in the right direction. Professional contract players ought to go cruising a little more on that basis.

'Round the world cruises on a six-masted boat would be just right. By the time they came back, in a couple of years, the rest of us dubs may get the hang of bridge as it is just now.
